Organized and Prepared for Microfilming
in April and May 2002 by S. Robert Powell

Microfilmed by Microfilm Data Management Corp.,

Prologue

It means a lot to me to have these papers organized and ready to be microfilmed. They provide a good organizational framework for thinking about my life in the period 1999-2001. They constitute, in addition, an outline and preliminary description of my life for that period.

The specific page references herein are as follows: 1999, pages 4-668; 2000, pages 669-1371; 2001, pages 1372-2267. With the microfilming of these personal papers for 1999-2001, virtually all of my personal papers, to date, have been organized and microfilmed. It's a good feeling.

Getting these papers for 1999-2001 organized and microfilmed has given me a lot of pleasure. Having done so, I have the feeling of having been liberated from them and from the years 1999-2001. At the same time, I am filled with the exhilarating feeling of starting over, of beginning again.

All of these personal papers are not, to be sure, the complete "me," but they're a good rough draft. Just how long these microfilms continue to exist is anybody's guess. My hope, of course, is that they continue to exist for a very long time after my death. I will do my best to get copies of these microfilms into the hands of the appropriate individuals and organizations. After that, there's nothing much that I can do.

When all is said and done, all of these papers about SRP constitute nothing more than a portrait of one person who was born in 1943 and who did his best to live an interesting and meaningful life.

Once again, Tennyson's Ulysses comes to mind. "I am a part of all that I have met; / Yet all experience is an arch wherethro' / Gleams that untravelled world, whose margin fades / For ever and for ever when I move. / How dull it is to pause, to make an end, / To rust unburnished, not to shine in use! / As tho; to breathe were life. . . / Come, my friends, / 'T is not too late to seek a newer world. / Push off, and sitting well in order smite / The sounding furrows; for my purpose holds / To sail beyond the sunset, and the baths / of all the western stars, until I die. . . / We are not now that strength which in old days / Moved earth and heaven, that which we are, we are: / One equal temper of heroic hearts, / Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will / To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

GRAVITY RAILROAD

Here began one of the first railroads in the Western Hemisphere, built 1828-29. The line had its eastern terminus at Honesdale; its southwestern terminus was later extended to Archbald & ultimately to Valley Junction near Olyphant. Built by the Delaware & Hudson to move coal to the D & H Canal, this line eventually provided passenger service and operated until the beginning of 1899.

Delighted to learn that you and Andrea plan to be married on May 16th.

I do use a lot of nutmeg as I go about my culinary endeavors. If I had a dozen or so whole nutmegs in my now-empty nutmeg jar, I would again feel secure in the kitchen. As it is, every time, in recent weeks, that I see my nutmeg grater, I am overcome with a feeling of emptiness.

While cleaning and organizing in the Augean stables (aka my bedroom) a few days ago, I came across a copy of "The Good Stuff" (131 pages). Is this, by any chance, the manuscript that you were looking for some months ago?

I will print out this message and enclose it in a copy of the new Historical Society note card that I had produced recently. I think it looks great. I must say that it is causing "quite a stir" here on the local scene.

Happy New Year to you and to Andrea.

AULD LANG SYNE[1]

Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to mind?
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And auld lang syne!

(Chorus)

And surely ye'll be your pint-stowp[2]!
And surely I'll be mine!
And we'll tak' a cup o' kindness yet,
For auld lang syne.

(Chorus)

We twa hae run about the braes[3],
And pou'd[4] the gowans[5] fine;
But we've wander'd mony a weary fit
Sin' auld lang syne.

(Chorus)

We twa hae paidl'd[6] in the burn[7],
Frae morning sun till dine;
But seas between us briad[8] hae roar'd
Sin' auld lang syne.

(Chorus)

And there's a hand, my trusty fere!
And gie's a hand o' thine!
And we'll tak' a right gude-willie waught[9],
For auld lang syne.

Chorus:
For auld land syne, my dear,
For auld lang syne.
We'll tak' a cup o' kindness yet,
For auld lang syne.

In spite of the popularity of "Auld Lang Syne," it has aptly been described as "the song that nobody knows." Even in Scotland, hardly a gathering sings it correctly, without some members of the party substituting "We'll meet again some ither nicht" for " And we'll tak' a cup o' kindness yet." People also tend to add "the days of" to the line, "For auld lang syne."

Robert Burns claimed to have transcribed the lyrics by ear. He wrote to Mrs Dunlop on 7th December 1788: "Light be the turf on the breast of the heaven-inspired Poet who composed this glorious Fragment" In a note (1793) to George Thomson, he describes "Auld Lang Syne" as "the old song of the olden times, and which has never been in print, nor even in manuscript, until I took it down from an old man's singing."

But, the Burns song we know and love to sing on Burns's Night and at New Year was by no means the first of its kind. A similar "Auld Lang Syne" tune was actually printed circa 1700 and is therefore certain to be much older. The Burns version was adapted by Thomson (probably with Burns's acquiescence) but Johnson had already reprinted Allan Ramsay's "Auld Lang Syne," a different tune set to a love song rather than a song of parting, in Vol I of SMM in 1787.

The timeless Burns gem still treasured to this day had to wait for publication until after the Bard's death and appeared in Vol V of SMM in 1796.

We got lucky. The nasty weather suddenly stopped on Sunday, January 3rd, at about 10 A.M. My early-morning plan was to walk into town (about 4 miles) for the dedication and installation of the PHMC marker in Gravity Park because the roads were so bad. But then the ice and snow started to melt. So I drove in.

The two-part ceremony came off beautifully. There were about 25 of us at the marker itself for the 15-minute unveiling portion of the ceremony. To my great pleasure and surprise, TWO of the Lackawanna County commissioners (Alberigi and Senio) and a press photographer showed up! I set the scene and then the mayor of Carbondale (Michael Tolerico) removed the drape from the marker. General applause. We then all went to City Council Chambers in City Hall for the second part of the program. There were about 35 of us in City Council Chambers. The president of the Lackawanna County Historical Society (Alan Sweeney) welcomed the group. I gave about a 20-minute talk on the history of the D&H Gravity Railroad. The executive director of the Lackawanna Heritage Valley (Bob Durkin) spoke. Senator Robert Mellow's chief of staff, Tom Browning, spoke. We served refreshments. Everything came off even better than we could have hoped for. We are very pleased. I'll send you copies of the press photographs when they're published.

Your D&H Trek map was prominently displayed at the front of the room and it was appreciated and admired by all. "Where did you get that wonderful map?" "Where can we get a copy of that map?" "What are the stars for on he map?" Those were just a few of the questions and comments that the map elicited. The map became the perfect pretext for reviewing again the highlights of the 4-day trek in October. Thanks again for allowing us to borrow it and for transporting it to Carbondale. We appreciate very much your help.

We are now preparing for the first in-school slide/lecture auditorium program on the Delaware and Hudson Gravity Railroad and Canal. The program will take place at Carbondale Area Junior/Senior High School and Sacred Heart School in Carbondale in early February. Our plan is then to show it at Western Wayne High School, and in the Honesdale schools, among other places. We'll keep you posted.

Thanks for your holiday card.

Happy New Year.

Best regards,

Robert

Dear Robert,

I am so glad you were able to have your event dispite the weather.

The wedding in Connecticut turned out to be quite wonderful. My husband really enjoyed seeing his many cousins who were in from various west coast locations, England and of course the northeast. The wedding was held east of Hartford and we got back to his sisters house in Danbury just as the sleet and rain started
We were not able to leave until after noon because conditions were so bad. Our 2 1/2 hour trip home turned into 4 hours because of the slow going and several key road closures and huge detours.

We have 4-wheel drive and we made it without problems except for our driveway which is a mess--and it is a half mile long! Ken leaves tomorrow for a week in Mexico and he is leaving me with the problem.of the drive. It wouldn't break my heart to be stuck at home another week.

Anyway, I was thinking of you and the ceremony during our long drive back from CT. I'm glad it went well. Thanks for the compliments on the map. Now we have to get it back to Andy by 2/1.

Stay in touch, I'll be getting a meeting notice out about the March D&H meeting soon.

Sandy

D&H Canal and Gravity Railroad: Turning a coal mine into a gold mine

By Lori Kean
D&H Transportation Heritage Council

Last fall, a small group of adventurers attempted to recapture the spirit of the D&H Canal and Gravity Railroad's heyday by bicycling from its beginning to end. Organized by the D&H Transportation Heritage Council, its purpose was to draw attention to the historic significance of the canal and gravity railroad and to explore its potential as a present-day economic resource.

In completing this journey, the "trekkers" accomplished this goal and more. First, they carried a piece of coal (the first piece to travel the route in 100 years) from Carbondale to Kingston, N.Y., a symbolic gesture commemorating the significance of the canal as it shaped not just the communities along the way but the industrialization of this nation.

Second, and most importantly, they refocused attention from the D&H's demise to the future of the canal and gravity railroad as a viable cultural and historic resource.

The centennial "coalfields to tidewater" trek, as we came to know it, was to take place 100 years after the last canal boat passed through the region. When I first got involved with the project last spring, I was asked why an event was being planned "to celebrate" the closing of the canal. Admittedly, the demise of the D&H was devastating to the communities that sprang up along the towpaths. People lost their jobs, their livelihoods, stores closed, and many faced financial ruin.

But this was not a celebration of a demise. It was a beginning, a celebration of the future. It was an experiment to see if "adaptive re-use" could indeed be put to work here.

All along the route communities, organizations and individuals welcomed the "trek" with open arms. From marching bands to homemade chocolate chip cookies, contributions along the way demonstrated the depth of commitment and desire to hold onto a piece of our history, indeed, to use this history as the cornerstone for our future.

The point is that sometimes we don't have to build or create something new to improve economic conditions. We don't always need a gimmick or a slick advertising campaign to stimulate growth. If we take a good hard look in our own backyards we might recognize what we already have.

The D&H Canal and gravity railroad serves as an educational, historical, cultural and natural resource. The Transportation Heritage Council would like to see the public eventually be able to complete this trek themselves.

It would be imprudent to try to list everyone who helped make this historic trek a success; the list is too long and we undoubtedly would overlook someone. Suffice it to say that our heartfelt thanks goes out to every bicyclist, boy scout, volunteer, business owner, program participant, government official, politician, cookie baker, drink provider, homeowner, museum employee, fire department and police escorter who helped us get from the coalfields to the tidewater safely and with our spirits and mission intact.

Our advice to the naysayers is simple: get out there and visit the Neversink Valley Area Museum in Cuddebackville, the High Falls D&H Canal Museum and the Wayne County Historical Society in Honesdale. Let your local and state legislators know how important it is to find funding to preserve sections of towpath and to provide access for hiking and biking. Stop in at the Millbrook Restaurant (an original dry dock site) in Pond Eddy, NY, or the Canal Towne Emporium, an original canal store, in Wurtsboro. Take a walk across the Roebling Aqueduct in Lackawaxen, along the trail at the Sullivan County Linear Park in Summitville. Volunteer with local organizations when they have towpath clean-up days. Or visit the site of the first anthracite coal mine in Carbondale, or Gravity Park where the gravity railroad started its trek over the mountain.

Lori McKean was the trek coordinator for the D&H Transportation Heritage Council, a loosely-knit organization of individuals, organizations and agencies involved in the preservation and promotion of the D&H Canal and Gravity Railroad. To get involved or to learn more, call Peter Osborne at the Minisink Valley Historical Society, at (914) 856-2375 or Sandy Schultz of the National Park Service at (717) 729-8251.

GRAVITY RAILROAD COMMEMORATED — As a group of bicycle "trekkers" preparted to leave the Pioneer City Station in October to travel the route of the Gravity Railroad and the D&H Canal to commorate the closing of both 100 years ago, members of the Carbondale Historical Society and the Greater Carbondale Chamber of Commerce provided small samples of coal in tiny burlap bags as keepsakes to remember the historic occasion (see Guest Commentary above). For a long time, perhaps decades, I have taken "persona non grata" to be a noun that is more or less synonymous with the noun "nonentity." To my horror, I discovered yesterday that "persona non grata" is an adjective and that it means "personally unacceptable or unwelcome" and not, as I had supposed, "someone or something that does not exist or exists only in the imagination," which is what the noun "nonentity" means.

Promise me that you'll erase this memo and tell no one about this appalling lacuna in my understanding of quotidian speech. But then, why am I telling you this? I do so because I have relearned, for the millionth time (as we all must, as editors) that we don't really "know" anything for certain and that everything that we think we know has to be thrown periodically into the editorial crucible and reexamined.

Thanks for the clarification. You're misuse pales in comparison to my slip of the tongue the other day when I blatantly used "quid pro quo" completely out of place. A feeling of searing pain went through me as I feared you and Paul and, in fact, the entire east coast heard my egregious error. Take comfort in the fact that you've probably forgotten more words in more languages that most Americans have ever heard, read, or said.

For a long time, perhaps decades, I have taken "persona non grata" to be a noun that is more or less synonymous with the noun "nonentity." To my horror, I discovered yesterday that "persona non grata" is an adjective and that it means "personally unacceptable or unwelcome" and not, as I had supposed, "someone or something that does not exist or exists only in the imagination," which is what the noun "nonentity" means.

Promise me that you'll erase this memo and tell no one about this appalling lacuna in my understanding of quotidian speech. But then, why am I telling you this? I do so because I have relearned, for the millionth time (as we all must, as editors) that we don't really "know" anything for certain and that everything that we think we know has to be thrown periodically into the editorial crucible and reexamined.

CARBONDALE HISTORICAL SOCIETY & MUSEUM

[1998 card]

January 13, 1999

Dear Jane and Barbara:

Here are two events for your calendars:

D&H Gravity Railroad & Canal Slide Presentation

Wednesday, February 17, 2 P.M.
Auditorium, Carbondale Area High School
(all of 7th and 8th grades will attend; about 250 students)
(Snow date: Friday, February 26 at 2 P.M.)

This is the slide program and D&H talk that I propose to do in lots of schools between Carbondale and the Hudson River. We would like to be able to do this auditorium program this spring at Western Wayne, then a couple of schools in Honesdale, and maybe more.

Carbondale Charter Day Ceremony

Monday, March 15, 2 P.M.
Auditorium, Carbondale Area High School
(all of grades 9-12; about 500 students)
(Snow date: Tuesday, March 16 at 2 P.M.)

Carbondale's Charter Day is March 15th; Mellow and Stabach and Carbondale's mayor will be invited to attend and to participate; we will have about 10 students on the program; the high school band and chorus will participate. This will be a prelude to the celebrations that will take place in 2001 to commemorate the sesquicentennial of Carbondale's (and Waymart's) incorporation as a city.

Hopefully, by then, some of the ice will have melted. If not, put on your ice skates and skate on over.

Best regards,

Robert

Hello.

In case you want to browse through some candidates for an "arbiter of culinary diction," here are some glossaries/dictionaries I found listed under Gastronomy at <http://www facstaff.bucknell.edu/rbeard/diction4.html>.

* The Cook's Thesaurus
* The Epicurious Eating Dictionary
* Definitions of Liquor Code Terms @ Sarge's Place
* Dictionary of Liquor Terms
* Food Lexicon (Danish, Dutch, English, French, German)
* GLOSSARY of Wine-Tasting Terminology
* HON Dictioniary (sic) of Food Intolerance
* Liten Gastronomisk Ordlista (Swedish-English-French)
* North Carolina State University Food Glossary
* Pearl's Food Lovers' Glossary
* Sam Adam's Beer Dictionary

I checked them out, and while I couldn't find the term in question, I thought some of these glossaries might be handy. (I was particularly impressed with Pearl's Food Lovers' Glossary.)

I also stumbled on the Mining Co. Guide to Southern U.S. Cuisine <http://southernfood.miningco.com/library/comm/blbbdess.htm>. There I did find "peach flambé" listed under Desserts, cobblers, and Pies.

I also used Dogpile to search the net for "peach and flambe." A number of restaurants have published their menus on line. Some prefer the term "peaches flambé." Others use "peach flambé." I saw one in New Jersey with "Flambe of Peach."

Personally, I would go with "peach flambé."

Hello, Mr. Know-It-All.

How's this for a coincidence? Last night, one of my jailbird students asked me, "What does 'epistemological skepticism' mean?"

I told him that it's been too long since my last philosophy class to tackle that question. (I guess the anticipated answer was "I don't know." so then he could observe, "Exactly." and I so ruined the "joke.")

As it turns out, what I really should have said was that I didn't feel like answering right then but that I would have an excellent reply in the morning: "...we don't really 'know' anything for certain and everything that we think we know has to be thrown periodically into the editorial crucible and reexamined."

I was just now reexamining a section on oscilloscopes in my study unit and began browsing a list of dictionaries on the 'Net, hoping to get an on-line electronics encyclopedia.

I came across <http://food.epicurious.com/a_home/a00_home/home.html>. This site may be of some significance to you as a crucible of sorts for settling some gastronomical diction disputes. It contains a dictionary and a recipe database, and it has on it a lot of indexed information taken from the magazines Bon Appétit and Gourmet. It even has an on-line forum.

(Why don't electronics engineers have such a site?! It isn't fair!)

Oh well, I'll leave you now with a recipe for a roasted butternut squash & carmelized onion tart with goat cheese (although you probably already know how to make that).

pastry dough
pie weights or raw rice for weighting shell
1 small butternut squash (about 1 pound)
1 1/2 teaspoons olive oil plus about 2 teaspoons for brushing squash
1 small onion
1 1/2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 whole large egg
1/2 large egg yolk (1/2 tablespoon)
1/3 cup heavy cream
3/4 cup grated Italian Fontina cheese (about 2 1/2 ounces)
1/3 cup freshly grated Parmesan (about 1 ounce)
1/4 cup crumbled mild soft goat cheese (about 1 ounce)
1 1/2 teaspoons minced fresh herbs such as rosemary, thyme, and marjoram leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
freshly ground black pepper
1/3 cup fine fresh bread crumbs

On a lightly floured surface roll out dough into a 12-inch round (about 1/8 inch thick). Fit dough into an 11-inch tart pan with a removable fluted rim. Freeze shell 15 minutes.

Preheat oven to 375°F.

Line shell with foil and fill with pie weights or raw rice. Bake shell in middle of oven until edge is pale golden, about 20 minutes. Carefully remove foil and weights or rice and bake shell 10 minutes more, or until bottom is golden. Leave oven on. Cool shell in pan on a rack.

Halve squash and scoop out seeds. Lightly brush each cut side with about 1 teaspoon oil and on a baking sheet roast squash, cut sides down, in middle of oven 40 minutes, or until soft.

While squash is roasting, thinly slice onion and in a heavy skillet cook in â tablespoon butter and remaining 1â teaspoons oil over moderate heat, stirring occasionally, until soft and golden brown, about 20 minutes.

Cool squash and scoop out flesh. In a food processor purée squash. Add whole egg, egg yolk, and cream and blend well. Transfer mixture to a large bowl and stir in cheeses, herbs, onion, salt, and pepper to taste. Pour filling into shell, smoothing top.

In a small skillet melt remaining tablespoon butter and stir in bread crumbs until combined well. Sprinkle bread crumb mixture evenly over filling. Bake tart in middle of oven 40 minutes, or until filling is set. Cool tart in pan on rack 10 minutes and carefully remove rim.

Serves 6 to 8.

Thanks for the clarification. You're misuse pales in comparison to my slip of the tongue the other day when I blatantly used "quid pro quo" completely out of place. A feeling of searing pain went through me as I feared you and Paul and, in fact, the entire east coast heard my egregious error. Take comfort in the fact that you've probably forgotten more words in more languages that most Americans have ever heard, read, or said.

Hi Robert,

This is my Christmas letter for this year, along with a copy of the = Yankee poem. =20 =20

Christmas 1998

Dear family and friends,

I=92ve been thinking about connectedness, and how I love being able to = connect with all of you in this way. Early this year I had occasion to think = about how the First Lady of the United States and a stock clerk stepped into = my life for an instant and left me with something to remember forever.

In 1962 John Kennedy was President, and I still lived in New York City. =
I
was walking rapidly on a cross street, headed toward Madison, when I = passed a woman hurrying in the opposite direction, toward Fifth. She held her scarf-covered head down, but our eyes met for that tiniest fraction of a second allowed in a crowded city like New York.

Ten steps later I did a stunned double take, turned, and met the = dazzling smile and mischievous eyes of someone obviously used to stunned double takes: Jackie Kennedy.

When she died a few years ago, the first thing I thought of was that sidewalk in New York. I thought about it again this past spring, when a young man was murdered not far from my home.

There aren=92t very many black faces where I live now. People of color = stand out. Perhaps that=92s why I acted impulsively one afternoon in a = discount store: because the clerk reminded me of my first home. Or maybe it was because I love music=85=85or because I don=92t like to resist an = opportunity to have fun.

I was strolling up the housewares aisle. A young black clerk was bopping towards me. I don=92t know how else to describe it, except to say he was completely into the music coming from the store=92s sound system. The = song was the revived 60s hit, =93Love Potion Number Nine.=94 His fingers snapped = and his dreadlocks bounced.

I watched him, fascinated and amused, but he didn=92t see me. His eyes = were half closed in the musical moment. We arrived at the same spot just as = he sang the lyric: =93I didn=92t know if it was day or night=85=85...=94 He = stopped, speechless, face to face with a middle-aged white woman who sang the = next line back to him: =93I started kissing everything in sight.=94

He had a great laugh.

We don=92t have much crime here. When a murder occurs, it gets a lot of attention. I turned on the TV one day and learned that the clerk=92s = name was Mike, and that he=92d been shot. I grieved acutely for this person I=92d connected with: a young man who had made me smile all afternoon.

Later this year I connected with another stranger. When a poem of mine = was published in Yankee magazine, I was thrilled to receive some mail on it. = One
note came from a woman who said it was, at age 50, her very first = =93fan=94 letter. She went on to say:

I was scanning the August issue of =93Yankee=94 while vacationing on = Cape Cod.
At around 1 a.m., I was glancing at the poetry selections and began to = read =93Monterey, Mass., 1955=94 and I began to sob. I awoke my husband and = said, =93read this.=94

Immediately, he said, =93It=92s your mother=85=85.it=92s your house = right down to the dogwoods.=94

I=92ve read your poem every day since I first found it. It brings my = mother back to me in so many ways.

Her letter left me in awe of the power of the printed word, and of = something else as well. The poem was titled =93Monterey, Mass., 1955=94 in honor = of my father=92s cousin, Peggy LeMoyne, who gave me much love and many = wonderful times at her Massachusetts home. But the actual events of the poem never happened, and the house I described existed (or so I thought) only in a = sort of recurring daydream of mine.

We are not islands, as John Donne rightly reminded us long ago. The attachments we make to others around us, bonds as strong as they are sometimes quick, keep us up, keep us afloat.

And here we are, you and I, making our Christmas connection once again. = For some of us, it=92s the only time we come together all year. And yet = it=92s enough to keep us attached. Thank you for keeping me up, keeping me = afloat.
I hope I do the same for you.

Love,
Susan

****
MONTEREY, MASS--1955

Open the door before I knock.
Gather me to your apron.
Tell me you love me there on the porch.
Sit close to me in the glider that squeaks.
Share the peas you're shelling.
Lead me inside after a time,
tell me that I'm home.
Take me past the newel post,
past the Oriental rugs,
the polished woods,
the restful rooms, all beaming.
Laugh with me in the kitchen sun.
Sip iced tea in the filtered light of dappled shade from dogwood trees.
Hold my hand on the garden path;
show me everything you grow.
Hold a buttercup under my chin.
Tell me you love me again.

I would follow your travel agent's advice. It's been too long since I was in Paris. Anywhere in the 5th arrondissement should be fine.

I can still see in my mind the room in the hotel in the Latin Quarter where I stayed for some time on several occasions many years ago. I can't seem to recall the name of the hotel, although I do know that it was extraordinarily reasonable. Paris in the late 1960's! Such fond memories. It makes me want to renew my passport and rush to the airport.

What is your opinion of the Latin Quarter in the 5th addrondisement for us to stay? The address is 205 Avenue De Choisy. Our travel agent suggested Hotel De WeHa which is near Place D' Italie.

Dear John:

It looks to me like I'm going to need more hay in about three or four weeks. Will it be possible for you to bring down one more load some Saturday? If so, just give me a call (282-5197) the night before and I'll make sure that I'm there when you arrive.

Given the ice and snow, I'm not sure it will be possible to drive in by the bridge, but I don't think that that will be a problem. You can just pull off by the side of the road and we can carry the bales the short distance from the side of the road to the hay barn on the other side of the creek.

OF THE UNITED STATES

INSTRUCTIONS

More and more, English is being replaced by Spanish, Vietnamese, Korean, Chinese and other languages in America. Rarely a day passes that you do not encounter someone who cannot speak English. And our government is actively encouraging this move toward multilingualism by refusing to declare English as the Official Language of the United States – and by actively promoting the use of foreign languages in more and more official capacities.

For example, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission punishes businesses with "English Only" policies. The U.S. Internal Revenue Service offers non-English tax advice and forms. American voting ballots are now printed in foreign languages in over 375 voting districts. Even our U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has tested using foreign languages for citizenship exams and U.S. citizenship swearing-in ceremonies.

Unless we change the policy of our government and pressure Congress to declare English as our Official Language, it is only a matter of time before America ceases to be an "English-speaking" country.

So please complete and return the attached opinion survey today. U.S.ENGLISH will tabulate and report the results of this poll to Congress and to state legislators across America. Thank you.

QUESTIONS

1. Are you concerned that Americans increasingly are being made to adapt to the language of the Hispanics, Vietnamese, Chinese and other foreign-language-speakers who are immigrating here in increasing numbers?

[X] YES [ ] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

2. Does it concern you that English is ceasing to be thought of as "America's language?"

[X] YES [ ] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

3. Congress, so far, has refused to take a stand declaring English as the Official Language of the United States.
Are you happy with that decision by Congress?

[ ] YES [X] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

4. Do you think that English should, in fact, be made the Official Language of the United States?

[X] YES [ ] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

5. Do you feel it is the U.S. taxpayer's obligation to pay for providing government services to everyone in the language of his or her choice?

[ ] YES [X] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

6. Right now, it is the official policy of the U.S. Government, through the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), to punish businesses with "English Only" policies.
Do you support this use of your tax dollars?

[ ] YES [X] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

7. American voting ballots are now printed in foreign languages in over 375 voting districts.
Do you think this is good for America?

[ ] YES [X] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

8. In many voter districts in the United States, special voter registration drives are conducted in foreign languages.
Are you in favor of these special foreign-language voter drives?

[ ] YES [X] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

9. The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has begun testing programs to conduct U.S. citizenship exams and even citizenship swearing-in ceremonies in foreign languages.
Do you support this program?

[ ] YES [X] NO [ ] DON'T CARE

10. The number one goal of U.S.ENGLISH is to promote English as the Official Language of the United States.
Do you support this goal?

[12/28/98] Tuesday

at home! yuk

Hi!

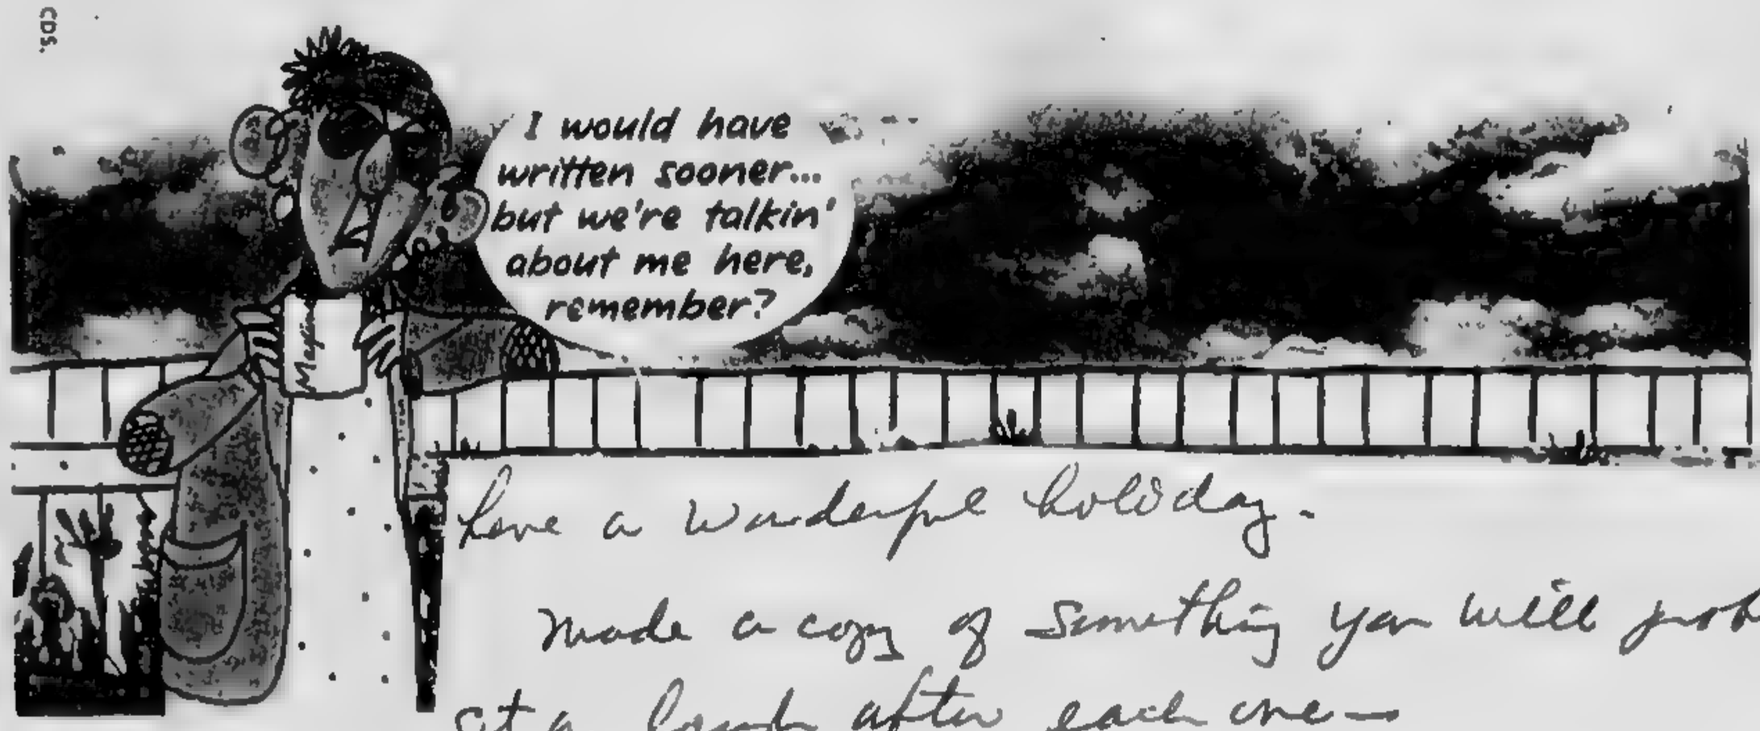

As Mark said before he left - "You'll be bored in 10 minutes." Well, almost.

I've cleaned the kitchen, the coffee pot, & lit some candles for the smell. Yep, I'm on the cliff! Ha - Had to take my floats days a few them - have 2 more to go - yuk.

all the books are not now! Only the 2 student CD's are to go yet.

We are going to have duck for Christmas & stay here - you know who pretends Sat & Sun. But the cruise is coming in Jan 10-17. So that will be a welcome get away. Keep fingers crossed for no major storms to close airports -

Hope your Mom is well & that you all have a wonderful holiday.

Made a copy of something you will probably get a laugh after each one -

Take care & have a happy one -

Regards

S & M

The Griswold Family Bulletin

Published by the Griswold Family Association of America, Inc.

Number 116, Winter, 1998

Annual GFA Reunion October 2nd - October 4th, 1998

An enthusiastic group of Griswolds and family members met in Seneca Falls over the weekend of October 2-4th, 1998. Activities included a presentation by a local micro-brewery, visits to historic sites in the Seneca Falls area, a box lunch and banquet dinner with surprise guest Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and our annual Business Meeting. Many thanks to the Reunion Chairperson, Sara French, and to all her helpers for making the arrangements for such an enjoyable visit to an area where some of our ancestors lived and worked.

The next Annual Meeting will be held in Wethersfield, CT, on October 2nd, 1999. Details will be provided in the Summer bulletin and on the website. The GFA Executive Board will meet Saturday, April 17, 1999, and Friday, October 1, 1999; details will be mailed.

West Coast Reunion, September 19th, 1998

The Annual Meeting was held on Saturday, September 19, 1998, at Andersen's Inn in Carlsbad, California. Activities included an excellent lunch at Pea Soup Andersen's restaurant, which is a local landmark complete with windmill. GFA Co-President Barbara Ryan, and GFA Genealogist Coralee Griswold, presented an overview of new publications and plans for the GFA in 1998-9. Mary Van Orsdol, the genealogist from Carlsbad Library gave a very interesting talk about research and available resources. Thanks to Region Vice President Priscilla Griswold for organizing the gathering.

Northeast Pennsylvania Reunion, August 15, 1998

The Northeastern Pennsylvania Griswold Reunion is a group made up of descendants of John Griswold (1754-1843) and Elizabeth Crittenden (d. 1851)

The 92nd reunion of these Griswolds took place on August 15, 1998.
The 93rd Griswold Reunion will be held at the Homestead Golf Course, Carbondale, PA, on August 21, 1999.

The first reunion of the descendants of John Griswold (who descends from Michael and Ann Griswold, Wethersfield, CT) and Elizabeth Crittenden took place on March 22, 1906, with 77 persons present.

Reunions have been held ever since, in recent years on the third Saturday in August, in the Moosic Grange Hall, Route 296, Waymart, PA. Complete minutes of all of these reunions are in the archives of these Griswolds.

Apply for GFA Annual Scholarships

Applications for the $2500 GFA Scholarship for the '99-'00 school year are available. Students eligible are active members, active member's children, or an active member's grandchildren applying to or attending college.

Just received the Winter 1998 "GFA Bulletin." Very nice.

We are VERY pleased to see the article about and photo of the 1998 Northeastern Pennsylvania Griswold Reunion on page 2. Thank you. We're excited about the possibilities of the golf tournament that will take place in conjunction with this year's reunion here on August 21st. We're hoping that the golf tournament will get involved with the reunion some people who have never attended.

In addition, I have sent a notice about the exciting "finds" on the GFA web page to every member of our Pennsylvania reunion

Thanks again to you and to Janet for doing all that you do for the GFA.

Best regards,

S. Robert Powell

Dear Robert,

Could you tell me the names and birthdates of the parents of Louisa Griswold?
Could you also tell me the birthdate of Louisa Griswold herself? I know that she had her first child (Eliza Jane) in 1852, so I can estimate the year of her birth as approximately 1832, but I would like to know more exactly. Also, was she older or younger than her sister Laura?

Thank you for all your geneaology work. I look forward to hearing from you!

Sincerely,

Germaine Endres

Louisa Griswold is the fourth child of Francis Griswold (b 11-14-1793, near Norwich, MA; d. 09-08-1869, in Clinton Township, Wayne County, PA) and Jane Loomis (b. 03-11-1792, Torrington, Ct, d. 03-19-1881, Clinton Township, Wayne County, PA). They were married on 03-20-1821. Both are interred in the Clinton Center Baptist Church Cemetery.

Louisa Griswold was born 11-02-1828 in Clinton Township, Wayne County, PA, and died there on 05-08-1912. On 04-21-1851, she married Henry Banning Curtis, who was born on 01-01-1825 and died on 02-12-1907 in Clinton Township. Both are interred in the Clinton Center Baptist Church Cemetery.

Laura Griswold was born on 07-07-1826, which means that she was two years older than Louisa.

Elizabeth Jane Corey was born on 08-25-1852 and died on 10-12-1913. On 05-04-1876, she and Albert Corey were married.

Hello Robert, and greetings from Singapore,
I am on a business trip to Singaore, Hong Kong and Beijing - wonderful places to visit- so it is nice to get friendly emails from home. I am happy to include your group in our publications - I think it shows the extent and growth of the Griswolds in America, and we are getting new members and inquiries all the time from the website. When you have the golf tournament info send it on and I will add it to the web pages. I hope to do a full update when I get back in February, plus I will be working on another bulletin for publication in March.
Best regards - Barbara

Dear Robert,

Thank you so much for the wonderful information! I am truly appreciative of all the family history research you do/records you maintain.

It turns out that yes, I did find that Griswold family in the 1850 census, but I wasn't sure that it was the right family because there was no Laura. But considering that Laura was two years older than Louisa, it makes sense that she would have been married by 1850. It seems that Louisa's older brothers stayed on the farm even though they were older -- George and Ruphus (I think it's Ruphus; the census taker had sloppy handwriting) were listed as ages 25 and 29.

I found two other Griswold families in the Clinton township -- I assume that they are brothers of Francis Griswold. In addition to Francis & Jane, there was Sumner & Clarissa Griswold and Horace & Louisa Griswold. (I thought that maybe my great, great-grandmother Louisa might be named after her aunt Louisa, the wife of Horace).

In any case, I wanted to ask you, do I assume correctly that you, like I, descend from the Francis & Jane Griswold family?

Well, I'll close for now. Thanks once again for your information and help. I will be in touch!

I'm not sure who the George Griswold (25 in 1850, i.e., b. 1825) and the Ruphus Griswold (29 in 1850, i.e., b. 1821) are that you have located in the 1850 census. They are not older brothers of Louisa and Laura, who had two older brothers (Louis, b. 1822, d. 1832; Alvin, b. 1824, d. 1849), and two younger brothers (Nathan, b. 1832, d. 1912; Homer, b. 1835, d. 1874). It seems that both Nathan and Homer should have been listed in the 1850 census as siblings of Louisa.

The only Rufus Griswold that I can find in my records is the second son of Orrin Griswold (m. Lois Deming), which would make him a first cousin of Louisa's. This Rufus was born in 1824 or 1827, so he appears to be too young to be the Rufus you've located. I don't find any George Griswold born in 1825. Are Rufus and George listed as being in the same household as Louisa in the 1850 census?

Yes, Sumner Griswold and Horace Griswold are siblings of Francis. There were six sons in the family: John, Francis, Orrin, Sumner, Horace, Sedate.

If, by any chance, you have a xerox copy of the Clinton Township census records from 1850, I would like to have a copy.

Everything seemed very normal when I got up, except, of course, for the ice floes that enveloped my world. The cat, the chickens, the cows--they all seemed to be exactly as they should be, in spite of it all. The main roads, remarkably, were open. Traffic moved as usual. The same nitwits, driving 20 miles an hour faster than they should, seemed to be everywhere on Route 6.

And yet, something was very wrong. My initial thought was that I was dreaming. But no, all indications seemed to confirm that I wasn't dreaming. I then thought that perhaps I had wandered into some kind of twilight-zone experience.

"Is this some kind of a joke? Is there a candid-camera crew hidden somewhere? Something is very wrong."

I sat down at the round table inside the front door and poured myself a cup of tea.

"Maybe I'm an hour early? Is it possible that today is Sunday? Is something terribly wrong in the building? No power? Water damage? Perhaps I should call someone in Product Devopment and find out what's going on? Who will I call? Ginger? Denise?"

I went inside the receptionist's cubicle and picked up the phone. As I dialed, I glanced at her calendar by the phone and discovered, to my amusement/embarrassment/delight that ICS was closed for the day in observance of Martin Luther King's birthday.

I went back to the round table, sat down, had a good laugh, and drank a second cup of tea.

As I was pulling out of the lot, one of the women who works in Education drove in.

"At least I'm not the only confused ICS employee," said I to myself as I headed north on Route 6.

Dear Robert,

Thanks for the help with the map. Sally brought it to today's meeting, and Andy Helgesen already has it in Ellenville. He is going to use it during Feb. in the Ellenville Library, then it is going to Sullivan County until the end of March, and then on to Wayne County for the remainder of the year (unless it is loaned out again).

We had another good meeting today and are moving ahead on preparing a standard base map for mapping the canal and gravities. Also, each section will be meeting to fill inthe information. I believe that your end will be meeting on Feb. 3.
Jane and Sally have the details. Something involving Gene Woock may be going on tomorrow night. Again, Jane will know. He is reviewing the draft EIS for the Fed. prison and the waymart site and then meeting on it. I believe we will be seking mitigation for impacts on the D&H gravity. Again, call Jane...for the details.

regarding winter woes, I've had my share this year. New Year's Day, I went to Elk and destroyed my toe. The same one I wrecked last year. It took six months to lose my nail and another six months to grow in the new one. Now, it looks like I've done the same thing all over again. This proves two important points, one about skiing and one about me. About me, I am incapable of learning; same injury twice and for the same reasons. worse, I will most likely do it again.
Second lesson, one can get hurt skiing, even is one doesn't fall! Will this stop me? Never! What stops me is the lack of snow and the endless rain.

Not to mention that I've been sick. My husband went to Mexico and brought me back bronchitis. Next time, I wish he would bring me something made of silver, or some local art, not a semi-tropical disease!

Like you say, the show must go on. What excites me the most is D&H work, and it looks like we are going to get into more exciting projects.

Stay in touch and I hope you are feeling better soon. Old age stinks, it seems to take forever to recover from things anymore. But, you are better off than a girlfriend of mine who deciced to go skateboarding and fell and broke BOTH wrists. I asked her if she had used protective gear, she said no, that she had given it to her husband. After all, she said she hadn't fallen skateboarding since 1965! Take care.

Thanks for the map, Sandy

Dear Robert,

Nathan and Homer Griswold are both listed in the 1850 Census along with Francis, Jane and Louisa. Nathan is listed as being 18 years old, and Homer is listed as being 15 years, which correspond exactly to the information you gave me

Yes, George and Ruphus are listed in the Francis and Jane household, but George is listed as George Alen, which I ignored, thinking that it was his middle name. But if you don't find him in your records, then it is probably his last name. Ruphus Griswold, I think, probably is a cousin of Louisa's. I think that because he is listed as "Ruphus Griswold," which is unusual, because usually the last name is not repeated if it's the same as all the others of a household, and it struck me as odd at the time. So if he was ■ boarder who worked on the farm, the census taker would have asked him his last name, and it would just happen to be the same as the family he was living with, because he was a nephew/cousin of theirs. As to the age discrepancy, I might have copied down 29 when it was really a 24 (9's can sometimes look like 4's for those people who write in bubbly looking 4's). The census taker had very sloppy handwriting, as you will see from my notes, with the question marks, and margin notes.

I am going to xerox copy my notes from the 1850 census and mail them to you right away. I apologize that these are handwritten, copied by hand from the census, instead of xeroxed right off the microfilm. What happened was that on that day there was only one printer working (the National Archives has about 30 microfilm readers, and only 4 printers). But I will be going again to the National Archives soon (we live close to Wash DC, less than an hour away) in the next month or two, and I will be glad to xerox/print you a copy. And, if you have any other information that you would like me to look up there, please let me know, because I would be very happy to actually be able to be helpful!

to you after you have been so kind as to give me so much information.

I'm still curious about your line of descendency (as it relates to mine)
--
are you also descended from Francis and Jane Griswold? And what about Francis' other brothers, John, Orrin, and Sedate -- did they also move from Massachusetts to Wayne County, Pennsylvania, or did they remain in Massachusetts?

Sincerely,

Germaine Endres

At long last, now that I have suitable nutmeg, I can again make a PROPER
custard pie. Thark you very much.

All is well. Winter-time stress, however, is beginning to settle in, and I'm anxious for spring to arrive.

Dear SRP:

I'm glad you can make a suitable custard pie. I'm pleased that the nutmeg is indeed pie-quality.

Le: me know if you need more.

Did I mention in the letter that the wedding is set for May 16? I accept that you may not be able to make the trek to the city, but I thought I'd give advance notice about the date. Invitation to follow.

Thanks for the clarification on George Alen and Rufus Griswold. I look forward to seeing a copy of the 1850 census.

Yes, I, too, am descended from Francis J. Griswold and Jane Loomis. Their third child, Laura, was the mother of my mother's maternal grandfather, Theron Orsemus Loomis (1848-1911).

John Griswold and Elizabeth Crittenden and their six sons moved to Wayne County, PA. Almost nothing is know of the oldest son (John, b. 07-09-1792) and his descendants; very little is known about the youngest son (Sedate, b. 10-01-1802) and his descendants. Quite a lot is known about the the other four sons (Francis, b. 11-14-1793; Orrin, b. 04-19-1796; Sumner, b. 08-20-1798; and Horace, b. 11-15-1800) and their descendants.

Have you visited the Griswold Family Association's website (http://www.Griswoldfamily.org)?

Dear Ed:

Carbondale was incorporated as city on March 15, 1851.

The Carbondale Historical Society will commemorate Carbondale's "Charter Day" this year with an historical program in the auditorium at Carbondale Area High School on Monday, March 15th, beginning at 2 P.M. The entire high school student body and their teachers will attend, and the program will be open to the public.

We would be very pleased if your schedule is such that you can attend and participate in this program by offering some remarks. Among the other guests who have been invited to participate are Mayor Michael Tolerico and Senator Robert Mellow.

During the program, the high school band will perform, and several students will present brief accounts of the city's early history. It should be an interesting and enjoyable experience for all concerned, and I hope that you will be able to attend.

If I can provide you with any additional information about these "Charter Day" ceremonies, I shall be pleased to do so.

Sincerely,

Monument dedication was a wonderful event

Waymart

I just wanted to say how wonderful the event was on January 3 at the Gravity Park monument at the base of Canaan St. for the dedication of the new plaque presented by the Museum Commission of Pennsylvania. Going back to City Hall and seeing the artifacts at the Carbondale Historical Society revealed what great treasures the town has there. I think you could build up the tourist business if the city would support the Historical Society and what they're doing. But I did have one question. Why has the footbridge from Canaan St. to the park never been restored since a car accident there a couple of years ago? It certainly would be advantageous for people who wanted to visit the monument if the bridge was restored. Secondly, one of the park benches was half broken and the park seems neglected. It certainly is a wonderful place that could get people to visit. And I noticed a car was almost parked backed into the monument. That monument has been there for so many years, that it's just sad the park has been neglected.

A large, unmarked brown envelope from Westerville, OH arrived a couple of days ago. What a nice surprise and such interesting clippings, brochures, articles it contained! Thank you.

Sharon: I put together an in-house e-mail based on your note and shared your news with Product Devolvement. Here is the e-mail that I sent:

[begin e-mail] "Received a nice letter from Sharon yesterday. She and Mark, it seems, are now working 24 hours a day, seven days a week--and loving every minute of it. Her first two "products" are complete and she is starting her research on several new ones. In April, she has two speaking engagements--one in Chicago and the other in Tucson. She recently completed a presentation to the Girl Scouts on careers in publishing. (She probably told them that everyone in publishing works at least 18 hours a day.) Not surprisingly, she seems to know more about what's going on here at Harcourt Learning Direct than most of us probably do. SM: "I started yesterday with a personal trainer at the athletic club. I told her if she left me I'd quit and go to the cafe and have a muffin and a milk shake." It won't be long, I'm sure, before Sharon has tired out/exhausted her personal trainer! [end e-mail]

Here are a couple of the replies I received:

>From Laurie Kroner:
"Thanks for sharing. Sharon's a pip. The muffin and milk shake sound great about now. When/if you reply, please let her know I was asking for her. In fact, ask her if I could have her street/e-mail address please.
L– "

>From Paul Warner:
"She's my hero."

>From Sheila Baress:
"Thanks for sharing the Sharon update, Robert. We lost a good one when she left. Sheila"

It seems to be baby time in Product Development. Liz Cruciani is out, having twins (very soon, I think). Marie McTague is out, having a child (any minute, so it would it appear).

Sorry to hear about your fall out the back door, Sharon. And then furnace problems! Not a very cheerful way to begin the year.

Very spring-like today--which means that it will probably snow tomorrow! Lots of new baby chicks up in the barn, and that's a lot of fun. The chicken calendar that you sent hangs here in my cubicle at ICS (rather, Harcourt Learning Direct).

Bar tending, the bank, Marlboro, the Rotary: there must be two Mark Massens. How could one person be in so many different places at the same time?

Such fond memories I have of my visit to Ohio last November! Thanks again for your gracious hospitality.

Robert

Carbondale Public Library
Carbondale PA 18407

Dear Board Member:

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Carbondale Public Library will be held in the library on Tuesday, February 16, at 7:30 P.M.

Because of a delay in getting the bulk mail permit, our mailing schedule must be put back at least a month. The bulk of the labels are ready and some of the envelopes. We will be discussing the fund drive at this meeting.

We will also have further discussion on several cultural events that we want to schedule at the library throughout the year.

Committee reports will also be given.

There are several financial matters that need some updating. Please try to attend this meeting. We need your support.

Sincerely,

Marty Langan

D&H

Delaware & Hudson Gravity Railroad and Canal
Carbondale to the Hudson River

Slide Presentation by Dr. S. Robert Powell

Sponsored by the Carbondale Historical Society & Museum

Carbondale Area High School Auditorium, February 17, 1999, 2 P.M.

- The D&H Gravity Railroad from Carbondale to Honesdale was opened on October 9, 1829. The 1829 roadbed consisted of Planes 1-5 from Carbondale to Rix's Gap, Level 1 across the top of the mountain, Planes 6-7 from Farview to Waymart, Level 2 from Waymart to Prompton, Plane 8 at Prompton, Level 3 from Prompton to Honesdale. The roadbed was reconfigured in 1841-1843, 1856-1858, and 1866-1868 to make it more efficient. Passenger service was instituted on April 5, 1877.

- Anthracite coal from the mines at Carbondale was transferred from the rail cars to the canal boats at Honesdale. The D&H Canal, which opened on October 16, 1828, was 108 miles long, with 108 locks. It extended from Honesdale to Rondout on the Hudson River. On November 5, 1898, the last canal boat left Honesdale for the Hudson River. The water was let out of the D&H Canal on June 13, 1899.

- One of the most famous locomotives in American history, the Stourbridge Lion (now in the Smithsonian in Washington, DC) was given its trial run on August 8, 1829, at Honesdale, with Horatio Allen as engineer. It was one of four locomotives (Stourbridge Lion, Delaware, Hudson, and America) that were imported from England to be used on the "levels" on the D&H Gravity Railroad.

- The distance between the rails (the "gauge") on the D&H Gravity Railroad was 51 inches ("standard" gauge is 56 ½ inches; the gauge on the Erie Railroad was 6 feet).

- The first underground anthracite mine in America was opened at Carbondale (a short distance west of the Seventh Avenue crossing, near the entrance to the Hendrick parking lot) in 1831. By the middle of the nineteenth century, more than a million tons of coal were being shipped annually by rail from Carbondale to Honesdale.

- The first anthracite coal breaker in America, the Racket Brook Breaker, was erected by the D&H above the city of Carbondale (in the vicinity of the Artesian well) in 1859.

- The D&H Gravity Railroad operated for the last time in its entirety as a gravity line on January 3, 1899, at which time the "light track" was converted into a steam rail line, known as the Honesdale Branch of the D&H Company. A switchback was installed at Panthers' Bluffs (on the mountain above Simpson) to replace Shepherd's Crook. The re-made PHMC Gravity Railroad marker in Gravity Park, Carbondale, was installed on January 3, 1999.

- There were 19 stations on the Honesdale Branch of the D&H: Carbondale, Lookout Junction, Bushwick, Lincoln Avenue, Racket Brook, White's, Panthers' Bluffs, Quigley, Farview, Canaan, Munson, Lake Lodore, Waymart, Keene, Steene, Prompton, Fortenia, Seelyville, Honesdale.

- The Honesdale Branch of the D&H Company was closed on August 20, 1931, when the last steam train traveled from Carbondale to Honesdale.

- On October 9-12, 1998, the D&H Trek was held to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the last trip by a canal boat (#1107) over the entire length of the D&H Canal. To celebrate that anniversary, cyclists and joggers left Carbondale at 10 A.M. on October 9, 1998, to begin a 4-day journey to deliver anthracite coal to Kingston, NY, on October 12, 1998.

For additional information about the D&H Gravity Railroad and Canal and about the history of Carbondale, contact the Carbondale Historical Society and Museum (located in City Hall) at 282-0385.

Thanks for your comments on the CPAC "Newsletter." I try to pack each issue full of news about CPAC members. The records that I have from the previous treasurer indicate that your dues are paid up for 1999. I send out blank membership cards because some people like to sign their own name on the card.

In recent weeks I have devoted a lot of time and energy to CPAC administrative matters, to articles and club ads for the ABA and APA YEARBOOKS, and to getting as much done as possible for the spring show. Our new poultry show secretary, Karen Porr, is very easy to work with: clear, direct, on-time, responsible, open.

As I was driving to work this morning, it occurred to me that I could, I think, probably get myself elected next year as the APA director for District 2--Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania. What do you think?

Dick Horstman is a good guy, but he does very little, if anything, for the APA from one end of the year to the other. For better or for worse, I am fairly well known in this district--because of what I do for the CPAC and because I show at about a dozen shows annually in the 5-state area. The feedback that I get from my articles in the poultry YEARBOOKS and in POULTRY PRESS is very positive. My impression is that I am well respected in exhibition poultry circles. Everyone who knows me seems to know that I am an enthusiastic supporter of the APA.

It's important that I know your thoughts on this possibility. At the same time, perhaps I should make a few exploratory inquiries among poultry friends and contacts in this district and see what they think?

Subject: Dangerous prepositions and abnormal grocers

The author whose writing is currently before me appears to have stepped directly from the pages of Sheridan's "The Rivals."

Just a couple of pages ago, the author, in speaking of the proper technique for opening bivalves says: "It's a skill worth having, but opening clams and oysters requires a lot of practice, and one would be well served by one-to-one instruction from an expert. It can be a dangerous preposition."

Editor: "Yes, I'm sure it can be, especially when it comes out of the mouth of a careless speaker or writer."

And now the author says: "Most people are familiar with salmon and shrimp, but not everyone is familiar with tilapia or stone crabs. Many of these fish and shellfish arent' available at your normal grocer."

Editor: "Can anyone point me in the direction of an abnormal grocer?"

Just yesterday, I opened a new one-pound bag of lapsang souchong and, as you've discovered, it's wonderfully aromatic.

Within the English units of measurement there are three different systems of weights (avoirdupois, troy, and apothecaries'), of which the most widely used is the avoirdupois. The troy system (named for Troyes, France, where it is said to have originated) is used only for precious metals. Apothecaries' weights are based on troy weights; in addition to the pound, ounce, and grain-which are equal to the troy units of the same name-other units are the dram and the scruple.

In the avoirdupois system, a pound is equivalent to 7,000 grains. In the troy system, a pound is equivalent to 5,760 grains. There are 16 avoirdupois ounces in an avoirdupois pound, but only 12 troy ounces in a troy pound.

Apothecaries with no scruples weigh less than those with too many qualms about pounding on with the weighty task as hand. Were that not the case, the Drams (an obscure Macedonian cult) would never have trounced the Trojans at the Battle of Avoirdupois in 13 B.C.E.

Received a nice letter from Sharon yesterday. She and Mark, it seems, are now working 24 hours a day, seven days a week--and loving every minute of it. Her first two "products" are complete and she is starting her research on several new ones. In April, she has two speaking engagements--one in Chicago and the other in Tucson. She recently completed a presentation to the Girl Scouts on careers in publishing. (She probably told them that everyone in publishing works at least 18 hours a day.) Not surprisingly, she seems to know more about what's going on here at Harcourt Learning Direct than most of us probably do. SM: "I started yesterday with a personal trainer at the athletic club. I told her if she left me I'd quit and go to the cafe and have a muffin and a milkshake." It won't be long, I'm sure, before Sharon has tired out/exhausted her personal trainer!

President's Message

Your Griswold Family Association has many exciting events in store for you as we approach the end of the twentieth century, and prepare to enter the twenty-first! During 1999, you can attend reunions in Pennsylvania, California and Connecticut. In July, 2000, we will take our first Western Heritage Tour, to Elko, Nevada, and follow in the footsteps of many of our pioneer relatives, including Griswolds. There will also be events in Connecticut in October of that year. Looking ahead to 2002, we have proposed another joint reunion with the Northeast Pennsylvania Griswold Reunion, and they are enthusiastic about that possibility.

The success of all these activities depends on YOU! Many GFA members are already working to make these events comfortable, convenient and enjoyable for you. However, YOU must be there to reap the rewards of their labors. Plan now to attend as many of our upcoming gatherings as you can! Specific details will appear in the Bulletin, on the GFA website, and in direct mailings. Plan your travels for 1999 and 2000 to include these dates and locations if at all possible.

Additionally, if you have any suggestions for new sites of interest where we might hold our reunion meetings, please let us know! We try to achieve a mix of locations to appeal to the broadest base of our membership. After all, this is your association. Let us know what you would like to see!

Janet Mann, President

Dr. Michael Illuzzi, Executive Director
Everhart Museum
Nay Aug Park
Scranton, PA 18509

Dear Dr. Illuzzi:

An exhibition of portraits of the mayors of Carbondale is currently on display in City Council Chambers in Carbondale. To commemorate the exhibition, which was mounted by the Carbondale Historical Society and Museum, a note card was produced. This is the note card in which this letter was enclosed.

As you will note from the information printed on the back of the card, the oil painting on the cover is of James Archbald, the first mayor of Carbondale. The painting is by John Willard Raught (185*?*-1931), the well known and highly regarded artist from northeastern Pennsylvania. Many paintings and oil sketches by J. W. Raught are, as you know, in the permanent collection of the Everhart Museum.

In an effort to promote the Carbondale exhibition of mayors' portraits and to celebrate the aesthetic achievements of J. W. Raught, I inquired in the gift shop at the Everhart Museum about the possibility of the Everhart's selling, on consignment, packets of ten (or individually) these James Archbald/J. W. Raught note cards. Such an arrangement would, of course, be beneficial to the Everhart Museum and to the Carbondale Historical Society.

After three visits to the Everhart, in February and early March, I learned, finally, from the lady who works in the gift shop, that the manager of the gift shop, Ms. Dawn (who was not present in the museum during any of my visits) has decided that the Everhart Museum was not interested in selling on consignment the James Archbald/J. W. Raught note cards.

Ms. Dawn's decision strikes me as unreasoned, myopic, and arbitrary. The card is of the highest quality. The oil painting on the card's cover is of a prominent local political figure, and it was painted by a local artist. The price of the card is modest. Is it possible that Ms. Dawn is unaware of the importance of J. W. Raught not only in local history but also in the history of the Everhart Museum?

Is it unreasonable to expect that one Lackawanna County museum (the Everhart) cooperate with another (the Carbondale Historical Society and Museum) to support and promote an appreciation of the oeuvre of a local artist who occupies an important position in the history of American art? Dr. Isaiah Fawkes Everhart would, I'm sure, be appalled by Ms. Dawn's decision. One can't help but wonder what the criteria might be that Ms. Dawn uses to evaluate items to be sold in the gift shop at the Everhart Museum? Should such decisions, one wonders, be made solely by the manager of the gift shop?

Any help that you can provide me in understanding Ms. Dawn's decision with regard to the James Archbald/J. W. Raught note card would be much appreciated.

Sincerely,

S. Robert Powell, Ph.D.
President

II. INTRODUCTORY REMARKS by Dr. S. Robert Powell

In 1802, just 26 years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Carbondale came into existence, when resolute settlers first came into the Lackawanna Valley in northeastern Pennsylvania and established their homes. Twenty-five years later, on October 5, 1850, a public meeting was held in the Carbondale Concert Hall, under the chairmanship of William Ball, Esquire.

To accomplish the three objectives that the citizens of village of Carbondale established for themselves at that meeting—and we'll learn what those three objectives were in the course of today's program—the citizens of Carbondale petitioned the state legislature for a city charter.

Six months later, on March 15, 1851, the city of Carbondale was officially born. We are met here today—148 years later—to commemorate the signing of that charter.

We'll begin these celebrations with . . .

XI. CLOSING REMARKS by Dr. S. Robert Powell

The most precious asset that any community can have are citizens who care about that city—its past, its present, and its future. Such citizens are the life blood of the community, because they are willing to serve.

How can you and I serve our community? How can you and I serve Carbondale? How can we help our city to realize its full potential as a community?

We can help by getting involved in our community. Carbondale needs us. Carbondale's leaders need us. They need us to say yes and they need us to say no. When something pleases us that they have done, we must learn to make known our pleasure, and when something that they have done displeases us, we must learn to make known our displeasure, and we must do so, not on the street corners or in the public houses of the community, but we must do so in structured, intelligent ways, where it counts—in the voting booths and in the public meetings that are called for the purpose of making governmental decisions.

Those decisions affect us all in a very direct way. Those decisions will affect our children and our grandchildren in a very direct way. The decisions that we can and must help make are crucial to Carbondale's future and to the future of generations of Carbondalians as yet unborn.

People when they come together, can always win in the end. Not unlike the founding fathers, we can move heaven and earth if we come together to solve community problems and create a future for Carbondale. It is people who founded Carbondale, and it is the people who founded Carbondale whom we have come here today to remember. It is they whom we celebrate, but at the same time we are here today to celebrate ourselves, because we, like our predecessors, care about Carbondale. Every one of you is a as valuable as any asset that any community can have. We are the city. You and I are the city. We are Carbondale, and you, the students in this school and the students in the other schools of the community, you are the future of the city of Carbondale.

The founding fathers of the city, you can be sure, believed in the future of Carbondale. If you will follow their lead and get involved in community life, you will be doing yourself, and your children, and their children, the greatest service, the greatest favor imaginable, because you will be giving them a future here in northeastern Pennsylvania. And if you do, 25 years form now, 50 years from now, 100 years from now, your descendants will gather together to celebrate a community and a people. The community that they celebrate will be the Carbondale that can be, if we all work together. The people that they celebrate will be you, and it will be me, and it will be themselves.

If we, like the founding fathers, simply believe in ourselves and in our community, we can and will have a bright future, and the city of Carbondale can and will have a bright future. If we are courageous, we can make it work. If we are men and women of fortitude, we can succeed. if we are resolved in our dedication and our commitment, and if we are willing to serve our community, not for our own personal gain or glory, but for the sake of the community and its future, we can succeed as no others have succeeded in our entire 148 year corporate history. We have everything to gain. Thank you.

Charter Day 1999

A complete success. School was canceled on March 15th because of snow. The snow date that we established when the preliminary arrangements were made was today. I had everything done that I had to get done by Monday morning.

I prepared a press package for the Carbondale News and one for the Scranton Times and delivered them on Monday afternoon. Tom Flannery and Chris Kelly showed up at the program. One of the shop teachers took a couple of photographs for The Times.

All I had to do today was to show up at the school and do the program. I worked at ICS in the morning and arrived at CAHS at about noon. Paul Kaczmarcik was not in, but Mr. Golecki, the vice-principal, was very supportive and ready to do anything I had to have done. Mr. Yavorosky was extremely helpful and got me one more "reader" to read the proclamation from the mayor (who felt, advisedly, that a student could do a better job at reading the proclamation than he, the mayor, could). The mayor said a couple of sentences, when the time came, and then Curtis Haley read the proclamation. Curtis is a terrific guy and very popular at the school. He did a wonderful job at reading the proclamation. He was a bit nervous before he did his part, but he did a great job. Afterwards, he was higher than a kite from the adrenaline rush of success.

The eight other readers did a very good job. They were all, I think, glad to be in the program.

I was all dressed and ready to go for one hour before the program began. I stayed in the auditorium and enjoyed the pre-event activity. The Band came in and rehearsed; the vocalist, Christina Hoffman, came in with Maureen Mussari and did a run-through of her solo. Laurie Carlo, from Rep. Staback's office, showed up with her proclamation from Ed Staback; Mayor Tolerico showed up, with his proclamation.

The excitement built and built. All of the students in the high school arrived in the auditorium. Mr. McMyne and the band played entrance music, which was essentially a drum sequence. Very exciting. It heightened the feeling of excitement and the festive/holiday aspect of the event.

We began at 2 P.M. Everything went beautifully. Toward the end of the program, Jeremy Pilny performed an "original percussion composition."

What a coup! It was wonderful. In his article about the event in the Scranton Tribune, Chris Kelly remarked: "Senior Jeremy Pilny drew thunderous applause for an original percussion piece penned for the day's festivities." What a moment! It was wonderful. As soon as the program ended, I went over to Jeremy and shook his hand. He was so excited and pumped up about his performance! What a moment! I shook the hand of every one of the participants in the program and thanked them.

Five minutes after the program ended, exactly at 2:50 P.M. (as it was supposed to), the entire auditorium was empty, except for me. I savored the moment and then packed up and went home.

Wednesday morning's Tribune and Wednesday evening's Times both had a story by Chris Kelly and photograph on the Charter Day ceremony! The photograph in the Tribune was of Mr. McMyne and the band; the one in the Times was of me and some of the readers. Both are excellent photographs. The one in which I appear is, from an artistic point of view, superb! I am at the left, more or less in profile, at the lectern. There is a large area of blackness between me and the seated readers. Very dramatic! I look especially elegant in my tux and white tie.

Joe Pascoe bought both papers and brought them out to the house. He really got very excited, as we all did, by the superb publicity. A half dozen of my colleagues at ICS (Ginger and Sheila both gave me copies of the Times article; Jeff, Laurie Dempsey, Jim Shemanski, and Denise saw the article; Sandy Cwalina from Education came over to tell me how much she enjoyed seeing the article) saw the article in the Times. The story and photo in the Times were in all issues of the paper; the story and photo in the Tribune was only in the up-valley edition.

On Wednesday morning at 10:08 A.M, Paul Kaczmarcik phoned me at ICS and left the following message on my voice mail: "Robert. Paul Kaczmarcik. Just calling to thank you for all the effort undertaken for yesterday's program. I'm sorry I was not available to be around for it, but I understand it went very well and I truly did enjoy the coverage offered this morning in the Carbondale edition of the Tribune. Thanks again, and we'll be in touch. Bye."

What a coup! I am delighted. I'm sure he was even more pleased when he learned that the article also appeared in all editions of the Times.

The mayor and Laurie Carlo had a good time doing their part in the program. I phoned both of their offices on Wednesday morning to thank them for participating.

Tom Flannery's photo and story (hopefully) will appear in the Carbondale News of March 24th.

C'dale celebrates Charter Day

By Christopher J. Kelly
TRIBUNE REGIONAL STAFF

Carbondale

The city of Carbondale was conceived in a downtown concert hall on Oct. 5, 1850. Six months later, on March 15, 1851, it was officially born.

The rest is history.

Memories and music mined from the fertile past of the oldest city in the anthracite region and fourth oldest in the state made for a telling touchstone to the future Tuesday as students at Carbondale Area High School celebrated the 148th anniversary of the city's incorporation.

Directed by Carbondale Historical Society and Museum President Dr. S. Robert Powell, a group of students hosted the 7th Charter Day Ceremonies, an hour-long program of historical narrative and musical performances topped off with official proclamations from state and city government officials.

"A lot of local history used to be taught in the schools," Dr. Powell said, explaining the inspiration for the ceremonies. "Now it's not, which is too bad, especially in an area like this with such important history. This connects them to the past. It tries to open that door."

When opened, that door reveals Carbondale as a village that sprang up just 26 years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence to become a city 15 years before Scranton and 20 years before Wilkes-Barre.

Leading their fellow students across the threshold were seventh-grader Carmen Winters, eighth-grader Kathy Brager, freshman Melinda Atkins, sophomore James Prieto, juniors Carlo Savo and Leo Makosky, and seniors Carrie and Michelle Tolerico.

Taking turns spinning an oral history of the city, the students provided a detailed account of how faith, the railroad industry and King Coal turned the village into a boom-town.

Senior Jeremy Pilny drew thunderous applause for an original percussion piece penned for the day's festivities.

Adding musical punctuation to the narrative were the junior-senior high school band and chorus. Senior Jeremy Pilny drew thunderous applause for an original percussion piece penned for the day's festivities.

In a proclamation designating March 15 "Carbondale Charter Day," Mayor Michael Tolerico lauded the city's contributions to American industry and said its place in Pennsylvania history is as deserved as it is secure.

Laurie Carlo, legislative assistant to state Rep. Ed Staback, delivered a citation from the state House of Representatives which hailed Carbondale's "diligent and productive citizens who have helped it to become an inspiring presence in this Commonwealth."

In closing, Dr. Powell called on all Carbondale residents to pull together to make the city's next 148 years as memorable as its first.

"Every one of you is as valuable as any asset any community can have. We are the city. You and I are the city," he said. "We are Carbondale."

City Has Reason To Party

Charter Day at Carbondale Area High School marks the city's 148th birthday in story and song.

CARBONDALE — The 19th century mortality rate made seeing your first birthday as much a reason for relief as a cause for celebration.

Conceived in a downtown concert hall on Oct. 5, 1850 and officially born six months later on March 15, 1851, the City of Carbondale has reached that achievement 148 times.

Now that's staying power.

RE: Microfiche

DATE: March 19, 1999

I am very pleased with the quality of the microfilming on the four jobs that have been completed to date. Thank you very much. There is only one matter that will have to be corrected, and that is described in #1, below.

1. The sequence numbers on the first two microfiche cards of "Flying Tippler Papers" have been transposed. What is labeled "1 of 28" should be "2 of 28" and what is labeled "2 of 28" should be labeled "1 of 28." When this labeling problem has been corrected, please produce three additional copies of the complete set of microfiche of "Flying Tippler Papers."

2. Please produce three copies of all of the "Poultry Papers" microfiche: 1988-1995, 1996-1997, and 1998. [You'll be interested to know that page 766 of the 1996-1997 "Poultry Papers" was missed during the original microfilming; also, page 33 of the 1998 "Poultry Papers" was filmed twice. These are both small issues, and I can live with them.]

3. Please microfilm the two boxes (6,265 pages) of 1992-1998 Journal of S. Robert Powell, Carbondale (Lackawanna County), PA. Instructions on labeling are given in the first folder in Box 1. Also, please produce one copy of this job.

Thank you.

Here it is. The long-sought-after measurement and conversion chart! The second page is especially enlightening.

Who would have ever dreamed that there are 2 2/3 tablespoons in a number 24 scoop? or that it takes 8.6 ladlefuls of a 4-ounce ladle to fill a liter? or that there are 13 cups in a number 10 can?

Keep this by the phone. You never know when some lunatic might call you and want to know how many cups there are, for example, in a number 3 can.

Hi, How are you? What's new? How is your Mom and all? Guess the chicks= are looking forward to spring. Boy, Cincl got 7 inches last night and = today. We got zero. Hot dog for that! Just love this Columbus area. We= still have snow on the ground from last week, however.

I was down in Charlottesville, VA at a Pharmacy meeting the 5th and 6th (yes, I still go, even though I have to pay my way--not part of my job here) and some ladies were talking to me about what I used to do. The Pharmacy Tech course came up and they asked could they get information. = said I would send their names. So here they are: =
I

Nancy Pearce, 18391 Brickchurch Rd., Orange, VA 22960 and Paula Arrington, HCR3 Box 243C, Rochelle, VA 22738
Could you give the telemarketing people their names to send information? =

They want to get certified and need to study. A good course is what they need and that one certainly is that.
Nothing else new here. Just work. I worked all day at office on Saturda= y and spent today cleaNING THE house. I guess the house wondered what happened. =

The week of 22nd I spend in Wisconsin. Keep no snow fingers crossed. =

Mark is up to his usual stuff--all of his many jobs keep him hopping.
Hope all is well with you and all. Take care. Regards. S & M

Dear Policyholder:

Thank you for choosing Colonial Penn as your new auto insurance company. Your decision shows what a smart buyer you are - a person who insists on saving money without sacrificing quality.

If you're like me, you probably tell your friends when you get a "bargain". And, that's exactly what we hope you do. You see, we offer some of the lowest rates available to safe drivers over the age of 40. So, we'd like you to "spread the word" about Colonial Penn.

Why not see if you can help your friends save on their auto insurance? Simply complete and return the enclosed postcard or, better yet, pass along one of the enclosed referral cards so your friends can call us directly. In either case, we'll provide them with information about money saving opportunities with Colonial Penn.

To show our appreciation for your referrals, we'll send you a free gift.

Again, many thanks for joining the Colonial Penn family, we look forward to being your insurance provider for many years to come.

Sincerely,

Harry

In the author's copy of "Salads and Fruits," we learn:

"Balsamic vinegar is a wonderful product, but be weary of cheap imitations."

Yes, cheap imitations (of vinegar or anything else) are, indeed, "wearying." For that reason, and others, I think it's also a good idea" to exercise watchful prudence/to be on the lookout for" cheap imitations.

Such solecisms--so all too common--can weary the eye of even the most wary editor.

I'm glad to see that you've apparently managed to stove off their quiescent effects.

Cheers!

My "balsamic" author has, it seems, been guzzling too much vinegar. Now she tell us:

"I often serve balsamic vinegar on the side to limit its use to salads that are not effected by its color."

Stand back, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, my salad lady is about to give you a run for the money.

At least you have some mistakes you can snicker at.

I get this slob of a technical writer who asserts such things as "...you should suspect that the regulator cr the capacitors connected in parallel with the regulator are defective..."

while a close look at the diagram seems to reveal that a defect in diode D8, in filter cap C15, or in the power transformer is what's actually causing the input voltage to drop to zero.

So help me, I am so sick of this tripe (with or without balsamic vinegar)--why can't this department hire 9 or 10 "permanent" authors who could write, and so be done with it?

I'm sure that the savings in paper for contracting these imposters we now use would alone more than make up for any increase in fee.

How famous is your balsamic author? How much real revenue do you think could be directly attributed to her byline? Most of these "authors," if used at all, should probably be retained only as SMEs for ~$20/book.

Your thoughts?

BTW, you may or may not realize it, but the dean is included in the address group "editors." (I called him "Big Brother" regarding this, but he protested saying that he needs to stay in touch with his shop.) Ginger, Sara, Cheryl, and Sheila are also listed under "editors" in Microsoft Mail, as well as an enigmatic "Guest" address that I think might belong to Dave Beach.

Ladies and Gentlemen. This is the captain speaking. We've just collided with an iceberg. There is no cause for alarm. As a precautionary measure, however, please put on your life jackets and proceed, in an orderly fashion, to your assigned lifeboat stations. I repeat, there is no cause for al . . . . .

I agree. This whole author thing has to be rethought. We spend most of our time trying to repair/putting patches on the work of idiots. The quality of the material that has been given to me to edit in the past six or eight months is mediocre at best. The horrible irony of it all is that the textbooks ("The Power of Art"; "On Cooking") for which Harcourt is producing study guides are superb. The woman who is "writing" the cooking study guides is, in addition, a real cipher when it comes to cooking and food. Based on what I know about her cooking skills from what she has "written," I know that she would not be allowed to enter, let alone cook in, a first-class kitchen. Her "name," as I see it, has no value.

The dumbing down of our products is alarming. We're headed in the direction of fancy coloring books with high falutin names.

Mr. Powell,

Enclosed you will find a picture of the Time Capsule ceremony.

It was nice to have you and your mother and Mr. Pascoe participate with us.

We would like to know if we have your permission to clean-up the Maplewood Cemetery for Memorial Day again this year? Our Cubmaster, Mr. John Ogazaly, in conjunction with the D A.V. is trying to put together a flag pole for the cemetery. It would be our pleasure to install it for this year.

I put Victor in touch with Joshua Manarchuk, who is the new superintendent of Maplewood Cem.

Thanks again

Dear MDM:

Here are some more papers to microfilm. There are 1,400 pages, which have been divided into ten manila folders. All of the pages are numbered. In the first couple of manila folders, most of the pages have copy on both sides. The majority of the pages, after the first couple of manila folders, have copy on only one side. Please number the microfiche 1 of 10, 2 of 10, etc.

Please make two duplicate copies of the microfiche cards when the job is completed.

Here is the title that I would like to have on each microfiche card:

CHRISTOPHER J. KELLY/TRIBUNE CONTRIBUTING PHOTOGRAPHER

A crowd of more than 50 watches intently as Carbondale Public Library board member Bob Vandenberg takes them through a slide-show tour of the region.

Scranton Tribune, 5-24-99 – p. C6

At library, every picture tells a story

By Christopher J. Kelly
TRIBUNE REGIONAL STAFF

Carbondale

At the turn of the century, the Carbondale Public Library was much more than a free repository for books; it was a clearing house of debate and discussion, a brokerage firm trading in the commodity of ideas.

Speakers came from as far as Philadelphia in a time when travel was not merely arduous, but dangerous.

Carbondalians provided the audience, and often, the presentation itself.

The gatherings gave citizens an opportunity to share experiences they otherwise might not have had, and brought the community together under one roof in a building erected for its betterment.

With a new millennium fast approaching, the oldest public library in Lackawanna County went back to its roots Tuesday, with the first in a series of programs intended to revive the old tradition.

More than 50 people packed the community room of today's Carbondale Public Library to take in board member Bob Vanuenberg's free hour-long look at the city's recent history and the cornucopia of natural wonders and engaging activities open to residents of the region.

"You hear so many downers (about the city and region)," he said. "People tend to focus too much on the problems, and miss the fact that we are centrally located in one of the most beautiful regions of the country.

"People look out and see that it snowed and the street's not plowed.

"But they miss the beautiful rolling hills around them."

The mountain of photographs Mr. Vandenberg has amassed in his travels are testament that he hasn't missed much around him. From the Moscow Country Fair to the Lackawaxen home of western novelist Zane Grey, he's been around.

'People tend to focus too much on the problems, and miss the fact that we are centrally located in one of the most beautiful regions of the country.'

Bob Vandenberg

A world of history and happenings lies within a 30 to 40-mile radius of Carbondale, he said, and area residents should recognize their good fortune and take advantage of it.

With his vivid documentation of scores of golf courses, lakes, recreational and historical sites and a host of annual and special events that only happen here, Mr. Vandenberg made a convincing case for the unique wonder he says is available for those who will simply open their eyes.

"Instead of saying there's nothing to do, pick up the paper and see what's going on," he said.

"Then get out and enjoy this beautiful area."

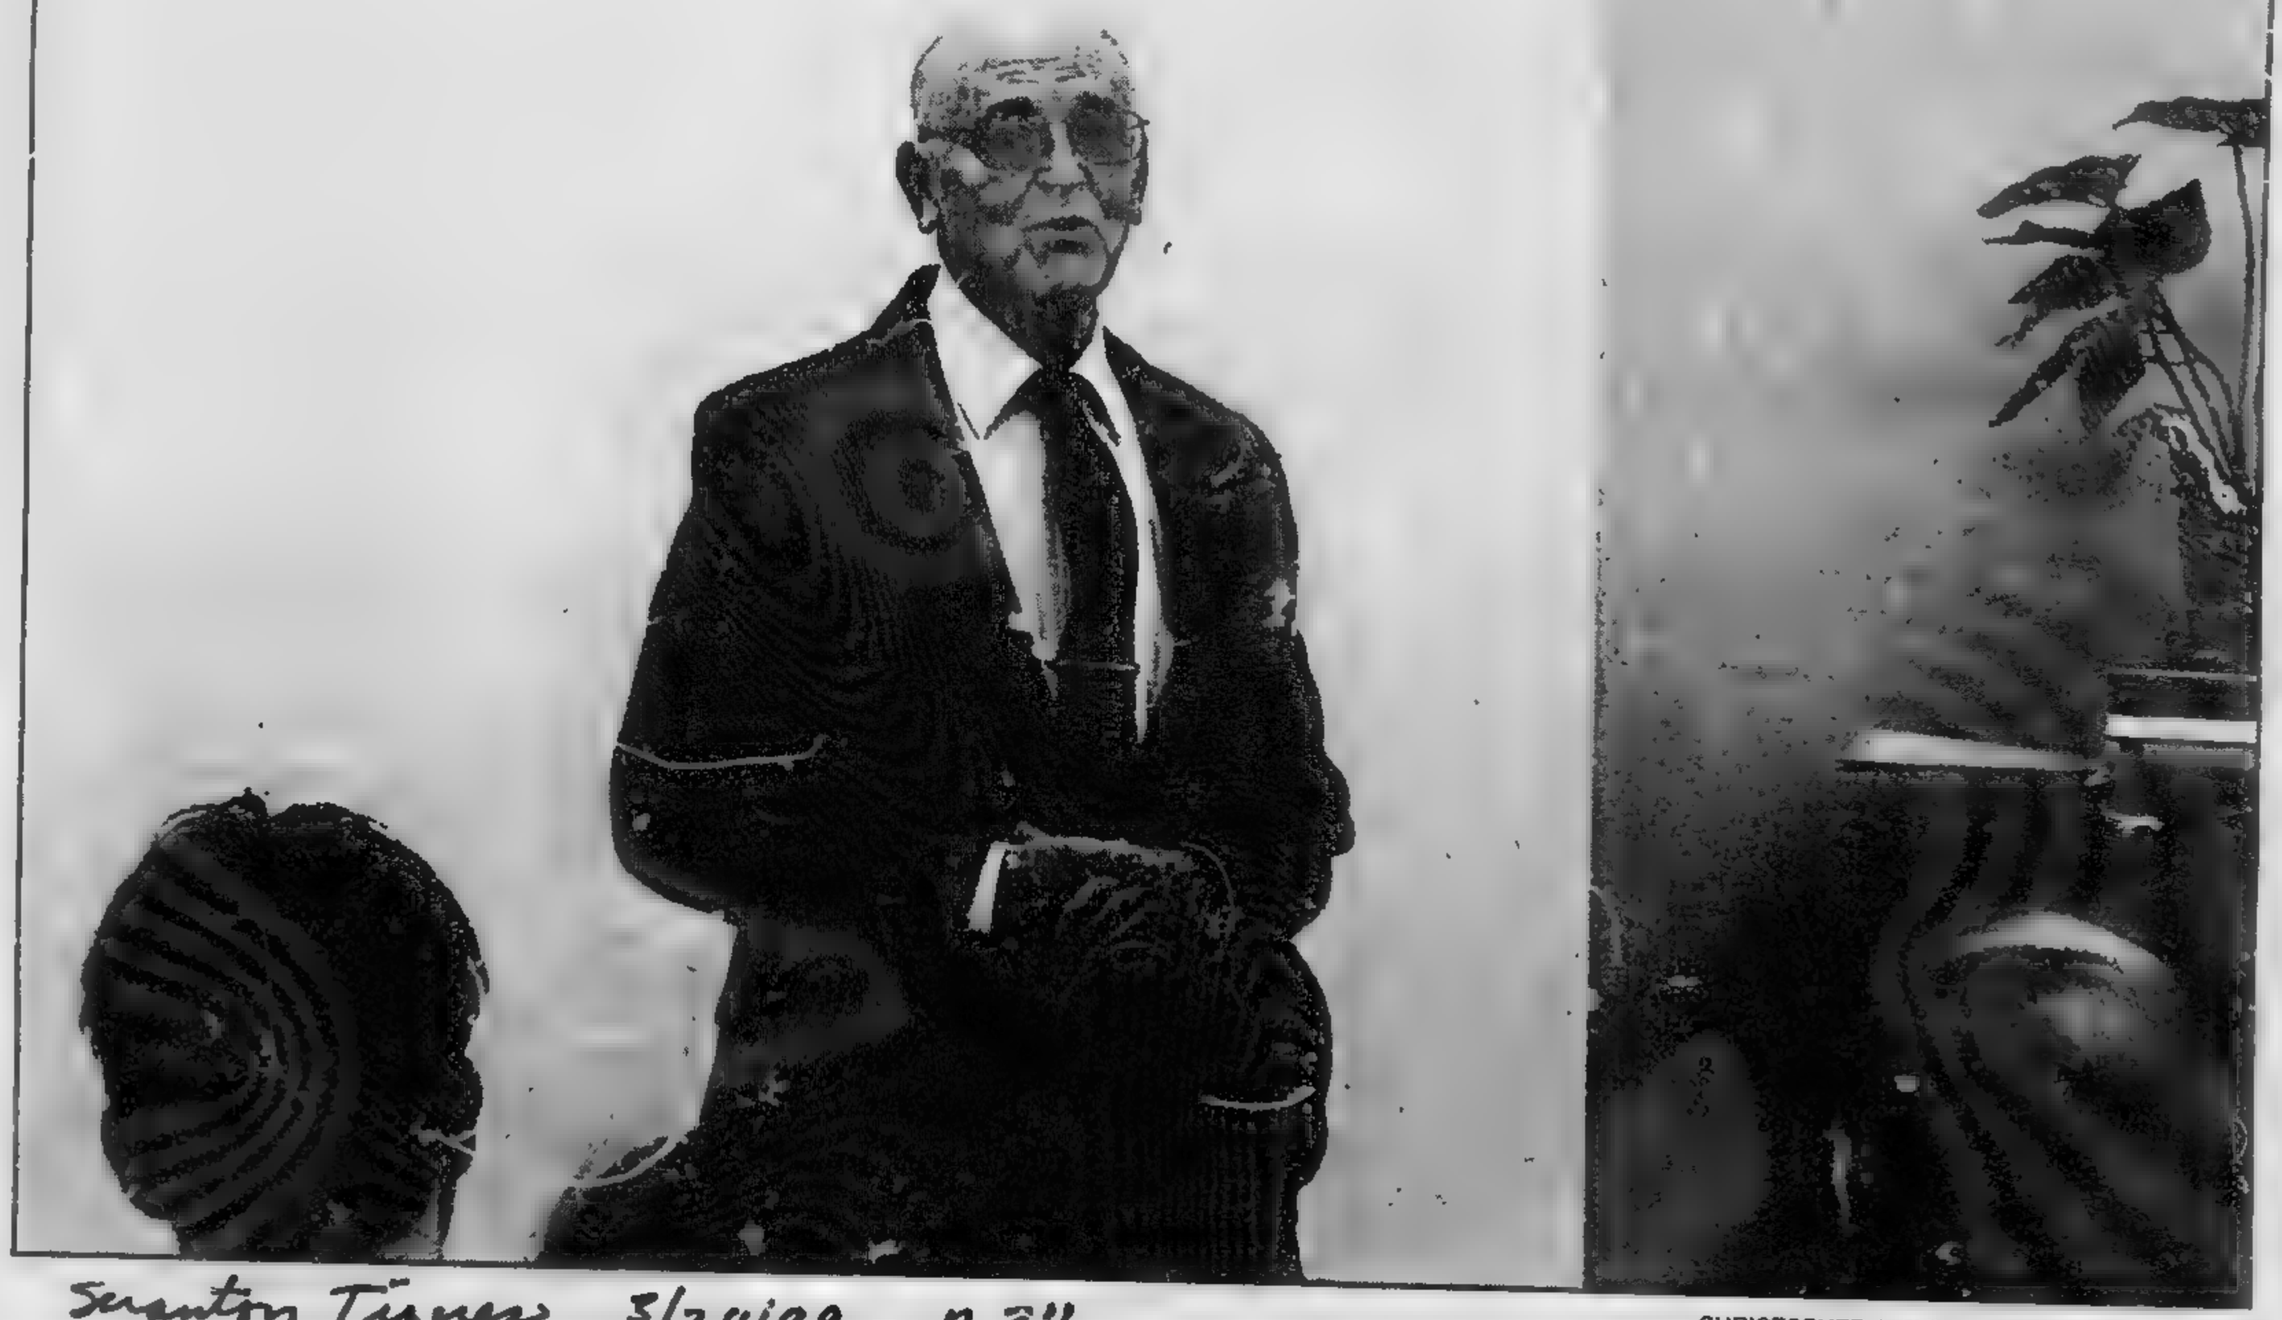

Drawing active and open response from his audience, it was clear Mr. Vandenberg won more than a few converts.

The next program in the series, slated for April 22, will be a discussion on the Carbondale Mine Fire delivered by Dr. Kathleen Munley of Marywood University.

"When we built this building, this room was designated the community room in an effort to revive this old tradition," board member and local historian Dr. Robert Powell said. "It looks like we're off to a good start."

"People look out and see that it snowed and the street's not plowed. But they miss the beautiful rolling hills around them."

The mountain of photographs Mr. Vandenberg has amassed in his travels are testament that he hasn't missed much around him. From the Moscow Country Fair to the Lackawaxen home of western novelist Zane Grey, he's been around.

A world of history and happenings lies within a 30 to 40-mile radius of Carbondale, he said, and area residents should recognize their good fortune and take advantage of it.

With his vivid documentation of scores of golf courses, lakes, recreational and historical sites and a host of annual and special events that only happen here, Mr. Vandenberg made a convincing case for the unique wonder he says is available for those who will simply open their eyes.

"Instead of saying there's nothing to do, pick up the paper and see what's going on," he said. "Then get out and enjoy this beautiful area."

Drawing active and open response from his audience, it was clear Mr. Vandenberg won more than a few converts.

The next program in the series, slated for April 22, will be a discussion on the Carbondale Mine Fire delivered by Dr. Kathleen Munley of Marywood University.

"When we built this building, this room was designated the community room in an effort to revive this old tradition," board member and local historian Dr. Robert Powell said. "It looks like we're off to a good start."

Dr. Michael Illuzzi, Executive Director
Everhart Museum
Nay Aug Park
Scranton, PA 18509

Dear Dr. Illuzzi:

An exhibition of portraits of the mayors of Carbondale is currently on display in City Council Chambers in Carbondale. To commemorate the exhibition, which was mounted by the Carbondale Historical Society and Museum, a note card was produced. This is the note card in which this letter was enclosed.

As you will note from the information printed on the back of the card, the oil painting on the cover is of James Archbald, the first mayor of Carbondale. The painting is by John Willard Raught (1857-1931), the well known and highly regarded artist from northeastern Pennsylvania. Many paintings and oil sketches by J. W. Raught are, as you know, in the permanent collection of the Everhart Museum.

In an effort to promote the Carbondale exhibition of mayors' portraits and to celebrate the aesthetic achievements of J. W. Raught, I inquired in the gift shop at the Everhart Museum about the possibility of the Everhart's selling, on consignment, packets of ten (or individually) these James Archbald/J. W. Raught note cards. Such an arrangement would, of course, be beneficial to the Everhart Museum and to the Carbondale Historical Society.

After three visits to the Everhart, in February and early March, I learned, finally, from the lady who works in the gift shop, that the manager of the gift shop, Ms. Dawn (who was not present in the museum during any of my visits) has decided that the Everhart Museum was not interested in selling on consignment the James Archbald/J. W. Raught note cards.

Ms. Dawn's decision strikes me as unreasoned, myopic, and arbitrary. The card is of the highest quality. The oil painting on the card's cover is of a prominent local political figure, and it was painted by a local artist. The price of the card is modest. Is it possible that Ms. Dawn is unaware of the importance of J. W. Raught not only in local history but also in the history of the Everhart Museum?

Is it unreasonable to expect that one Lackawanna County museum (the Everhart) cooperate with another (the Carbondale Historical Society and Museum) to support and promote an appreciation of the oeuvre of a local artist who occupies an important position in the history of American art? Dr. Isaiah Fawkes Everhart would, I'm sure, be appalled by Ms. Dawn's decision. One can't help but wonder what the criteria might be that Ms. Dawn uses to evaluate items to be sold in the gift shop at the Everhart Museum? Should such decisions, one wonders, be made solely by the manager of the gift shop?

Any help that you can provide me in understanding Ms. Dawn's decision with regard to the James Archbald/J. W. Raught note card would be much appreciated.

Sincerely,

S. Robert Powell, Ph.D.

Dr. Michael Illuzzi, Executive Director
Everhart Museum
Nay Aug Park
Scranton, PA 18509

Dear Dr. Illuzzi:

Thank you for your recent telephone response (on my voice mail) to my letter to you of March 15, 1999. I apologize for not having returned your call or contacted you before this time.

I decided to stop at the Everhart Museum this afternoon, hoping that I might perhaps be able to talk with you about the James Archbald note cards. I should have realized, however, that the museum would be closed because of the Easter holiday. No matter. I had a pleasant walk in Nay Aug Park and enjoyed the spring weather as I recalled many wonderful visits to the Everhart Museum.

I'll phone your office next week and schedule an appointment with you. Yes, we are very much interested in selling on consignment our James Archbald note cards in the gift shop at the Everhart Museum.

Sincerely,

S. Robert Powell

Carbondale Public Library
Meeting of the Board of Directors
February 16, 1999

The regularly scheduled meeting of the Board of Directors of the Carbondale Public Library for February 1999 took place on the 16th of the month, beginning at 7:30 P.M., in the Board room on the second floor of the Library. Present were Mesdames Calabro (treasurer), Race (corresponding secretary), McNabb, Muldoon (library director); Messieurs Langan (president), Burke (vice-president), Pascoe, Vandenberg, Imbalzano, Staple, and Powell (recording secretary). As the meeting opened, President Langan introduced and welcomed Ralph Imbalzano to membership on the Board.

Joseph Pascoe arranged to have Tom M. Fontana from The Carbondale News come to the meeting to take an official photograph of the Board for 1999. The Board sat to three photographs by Tom Fontana. Five members were seated on the recently-restored library directors' chairs (Burke, Langan, Muldoon, Staple, Race); the six other members present (Powell, McNabb, Pascoe, Vandenberg, Calabro, Imbalzano) stood in front of the recently-restored library board table and behind the seated directors. Not present for the photo were Bernard Brown, Bill Wallis, Ruth Miley, and Father Steve Matylewicz. [Secretary's note: The photographs turned out beautifully. One was published on page 5 of the March 3, 1999 Carbondale News. A copy of the published photograph is appended to these minutes. There are three errors in the caption: Katherine Race, the corresponding secretary, is erroneously identified as the "recording" secretary; Bill Wallis' last name is incorrectly given as "Waller."and Marty Langan is erroneously identified as "Mary" Langan. The library Board's table and the library directors' chairs were formerly in the board room at the Pioneer Dime Bank, Carbondale. J. F. Wheeler was president; Willis G. Blocksidge, vice president; Mary B. Kelly, cashier; Aubrey Staple, assistant cashier; Albert E. Pettinato also worked there. The Pioneer Dime Bank merged with Northeastern Bank on May 25, 1959.]

The minutes of the January 1999 meeting, as taken down by Ruth Miley, were read by Anne Muldoon. It was regularly moved (Burke) and seconded (Race) that the minutes be approved as read. The motion carried. The treasurer's report was read by Pat Calabro. It was regularly moved (Vandenberg) and seconded (Pascoe) that the treasurer's report for January 1999 be approved as read. The motion carried.

OLD BUSINESS

Correspondence and Communication. Kathryn Race read the thank you note that the Board received for flowers that the Board sent to the Muldoon family following the death of Joseph Muldoon (brother of the Library Director).

Library Director's Report. Anne reported that there were lots of administrative forms for the new officers of the Board to sign. The officers of the Board were asked to remain for a few minutes at the end of the meeting to sign the necessary bank forms. Ann presented a copy of the names and addresses of all Board members to all members present. Robert Powell noted that his phone number is incorrect on the list. His correct phone number is 282 (not 222) 5197. Robert's office phone is 342-7701, ext. 283.

Fund Raising. "We're back a month," reported the Library Director, who suggested that a mailing committee be formed. Kathrine Race volunteered to head that committee. Anne reported that we have to get a new bulk-mailing permit.

Lecture/Cultural Programs in the Library. President Langan remarked that there used to be lecture/cultural programs in the library in the past. He then announced that Dr. Kathleen Munley will present a talk in the Library on April 21, beginning at 7:30 P.M., on the Carbondale mine fire. The talk will be co-sponsored by the Carbondale News Club. Jim Burke will contact Tom Munley, a caterer who will provide light refreshments (coffee and cookies).

On Tuesday, March 23rd, Bob Vandenberg will present a talk in the Library on "Dozens of Advantages in Living in the Carbondale Area." This program will be co-sponsored by UNICO. This is a talk similar to the one that Bob presented on Wednesday, February 17, 1999, at a meeting of the Genealogical Society of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Dr. S. Robert Powell, president of the Carbondale Historical Society, will present a slide-illustrated talk in May on the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company's Gravity Railroad and Canal. This is a presentation that Dr. Powell and the Historical Society presented to the seventh and eight grades at Carbondale Area High School on February 17th at 2 P.M. [Dr. Powell announced that the Historical Society would also sponsor a Charter Day program at Carbondale Area on March 15, 1999, the 148th anniversary of the signing of the charter that brought into existence the city of Carbondale.]

NEW BUSINESS

Library Staff. The Library Director reported that Frances Grecco and Dorothy Peduto work part time (20 hours a week) in the library. They work at the library through the Scranton Lackawanna Human Development Agency. Under the requirements of that agency, Frances and Dorothy are here "in training" and they can not be retained, it seems, after June. The Library directors were not pleased to learn that we might loose Frances and Dorothy. Both are experienced and valuable staff members.

Friends of the Library. Katherine Race reported that the Friends met last week. At last year's art/antique/collectible show, the Friends earned over $1,000 for the Library. Such an effort requires a great deal of work and the Friends wondered if the Library's Board of Directors would like to take over the art/antique/collectible show this year. President Langan remarked that the Board should probably not get involved in an art/antique/collectble show.

Fund Raising. Ralph Imbalzano suggested that perhaps the Board should consider sponsoring children's events and programs in order to raise money for the Library. Bob Vandenberg said that there is a lot of work to be done to update the donor list that the Library now has—"We need to make sure we have the names of the current officers of all organizations," said he. Marty Langan said that the Board would have a work session on Tuesday, March 2nd, at 7 P.M., at the Library to work on updating the donor list. Jim Burke and Joseph Pascoe said that they would not be able to attend as they were participating in the Dr. Seuss Reading Across America program.

There being no further business to be brought before the Board, it was regularly moved (Burke) and seconded (Staple) that the meeting be adjouned. The meeting was accordingly adjourned at 8:45 P.M.

Following adjournment, it was learned that today, February 16, is Joseph Pascoe's birthday. The Board sang Happy Birthday to Joe.

Following adjournment it was also reported that the Race Lumber building (which at one time was regarded as a possible site for the new Carbondale Library) has been sold to the Tonkins at Napa Auto Parts.

Carbondale Public Library
Meeting of the Board of Directors
March 16, 1999

The March 16, 1999 meeting of the Board of Directors of the Carbondale Public Library was called to order at 7:36 P.M. by Board president Martin Langan. Present at the meeting were Mesdames McNabb, Calabro, Muldoon, and Race; Messieurs Langan, Pascoe, Vandenberg, Matylewicz, Staple, Wallis, and Powell.

The minutes of the February 16, 1999 meeting were read by S. Robert Powell. It was regularly moved (Pascoe) and seconded (Race) that the minutes be approved as read. The motion carried. Marty Langan complimented the recording secretary for the "excellent summary" of the February 16, 1999 meeting. The treasurer's report for February was presented by Patricia Calabro. The Library Director reported that the Library's phone bill would henceforth be 70% less because of new rates for libraries and schools in the commonwealth. It was regularly moved (Race) and seconded (Pascoe) that the treasurer's report be accepted as read. The motion carried.

It was then regularly moved (Vandenberg) and seconded (Staple) that the Library Director and Treasurer be authorized to transfer savings funds within the banks to maximize the potential for interest to be earned. The motion carried.

Correspondence and Communications. A letter has been received from the Gates Learning Foundation informing us that Pennsylvania libraries could receive as much as $3 million dollars for upgrading technology in the libraries for 2000-2001.

It was agreed that the Board send a get well card to Dorothy Peduto, who was recently hospitalized; also a card to Joan Cosgrove, who recently had surgery.

Report of the Library Director. President Langan asked the Library Director if she had any "words of inspiration, guidance, or encouragement." Anne reported that the fire company had checked the building today and reported that everything is fine. The gas can in the hall was cited as a problem and the fire company suggested that the can be moved. Perhaps a small shed could be constructed to house the can? Ann raised the possibility of Eastern Time's installing a fire alarm system in the library. If the alarm goes off, an automatic phone call is placed with the fire department. Eastern Time is located in Allentown. Anne also reported that Mr. Walter Washelewski, a member of the Board for many years, died on Saturday; viewing tomorrow at Brennan's; burial on Thursday. Mrs. Lillian Washelewski is now in the Forest City Nursing Home. The Library will send a card to Mr. Alfred Washelewski, Walter's brother.

Unfinished Business. Next Tuesday, March 23rd, at 7:30 P.M., Bob Vandenberg will present "Dozens of Advantages in Living in the Carbondale Area," a slide-illustrated talk, in the community room in the Library. The talk will be cosponsored by UNICO.

Bob Vandenberg and Bill Wallis presented for the Board's approval a copy of fund-raising letter. The letter is to be sent to those who have made pledges to the Library's building fund but who have not yet paid their pledges. The letter was approved by the Board and President Langan thanked Messieurs Vandenberg and Wallis for having written the letter.

Father Steve Matylewicz announced that a ham dinner will take place on May 22nd at the Trinity Episcopal Church to benefit the Carbondale Public Library.

It was reported that the program (Scranton Lackawanna Human Development Agency) that funds the salaries of Frances Grecco and Dorothy Peduto will not do so indefinitely. Frances' employment will end on April 1st; Dorothy's on June 30th. The Board agreed that they would like to keep both Frances and Dorothy as employees. Anne said that she was able to locate about $8,000 in the "operating savings account" that might be used to pay Frances and Dorothy through the end of the calendar year: $4,300 for Frances; $3,000 for Dorothy. Martin Langan: "We should use this money to keep Frances and Dorothy. We must maintain our hours and service to the community." It was regularly moved (Staple) and seconded (McNabb) that the Library use these funds to pay Frances and Dorothy. The motion carried. This use of the surplus funds in the "operating savings account" will be discussed with Sally Felix. The Library will also have to pay their (Frances and Dorothy) FICA, unemployment compensation, and workmen's compensation.

New Business. Martin Langan proudly pointed out to the Board the picture rails that he installed in the community room of the Library. He mentioned that James Burke and Joseph Pascoe could now proceed to hang pictures in the community room.

Friends of the Library. Bill Wallis reported that the "Friends" will sponsor a day trip to Hyde Park, NY (home of the Roosevelts and Vanderbilts) on September 25, 1999. The cost will be $25 a person. In addition, the flagpole that was recently acquired by the Friends will be installed in front of the Library on April 17th at 11 A.M. Bill Wallis closed his report on the doings of the Friends by recounting a pleasantry/joke about a doctor, a nurse, and an HMO representative who, in turn, speak to Saint Peter and ask for admission to heaven. The doctor and the nurse were both granted unconditional admission; the HMO rep was told: "Come right in. But only for two days." Father Steve then told a pleasantry about clocks in heaven. There is, it seems, a clock in heaven for everyone on earth. "Every time you tell a lie, a minute is taken from your life. A certain widow's clock hasn't moved in years. There is no clock for President Clinton. His clock is attached to the ceiling and used as a ceiling fan."

From the President. Marty expressed the belief that the Board could be more efficient if it broke up into committees and did the Library's business: fund raising, cultural events, and so on. Katherine Race said that she has already volunteered to head up the committee to secure the bulk-mail permit for the Library. Katherine reported that that permit has been secured (by the Library Director).

There being no further business to conduct, it was regularly moved (Staple) and seconded (Calabro) that the meeting be adjourned. The motion carried.

Respectfully submitted,

S. Robert Powell
Recording Secretary

Following adjournment, the drawing for the "dollar bouquet" was conducted. The winner was Janet Phillips.

The Department of Revenue can verify the amounts you rep...ted on your federal tax return.

PA Schedule A - PA Taxable Interest Income

If your PA taxable interest income is over $2,500, you must submit a schedule. See the instructions in your 1998 ...ooklet for what interest is taxable or exempt. If you need more space, attach additional schedules in this format.

If filing federal Schedule B:

			Amount
1.	Enter the amount from Line 4 from your federal Schedule B	1.	3453 33
2.	Subtract PA exempt interest that you reported as taxable on federal Schedule B. See the PA-40 instructions.	2.	—
3.	Subtract your share of non-PA subchapter S corporation interest that you reported on federal Schedule B. See the PA-40 instructions and PA Schedule B, Line 7.	3.	—
4.	Subtract other PA exempt interest. See the instructions. Describe or list payer and the amount.	4.	—
5.	Adjusted PA taxable interest. Subtract Lines 2, 3, and 4 from Line 1.	5.	3453 33

If you do not have to report any other PA taxable interest, enter the amount from Line 5 on your PA-40, Line 2.

If a shareholder in a non-PA S corporation, see Line 7.

6. Add other PA taxable interest. See the instructions. List each payer and the amount.

Total	6.	—
7. Enter your total PA taxable interest from partnerships and PA S corporations, if not already included in Line 1.	7.	—
8. Total PA taxable interest income. Add Lines 5, 6, and 7. Include on your PA-40, Line 2.	8.

PA Schedule B - PA Taxable Dividend Income

If your PA taxable dividend income is over $2,500, you must submit a schedule. See the instructions in your PA-40 booklet for what dividend income is taxable or exempt. If you need more space, attach additional schedules in this format.

If filing federal Schedule B:

			Amount
1.	Enter the amount from Line 6 of your federal Schedule B.	1.	1180 70
2.	Subtract PA "exempt interest dividends" you reported on federal Schedule B. See your mutual fund or investment fund statement and the PA-40 instructions.	2.	—
3.	Subtract your share of non-PA subchapter S corporation dividends that you reported on federal Schedule B. See the PA-40 instructions and Line 7.	3.	—
4.	Subtract other PA exempt dividend income. See the instructions. Describe or list payer and the amount.	4.
5.	Adjusted PA taxable dividend income. Subtract Lines 2, 3, and 4 from Line 1.	5.	1180 70

If you do not have to report any other PA taxable dividends, enter the amount from Line 5 on your PA-40, Line 3.

If a shareholder in a non-PA S corporation, see Line 7.

6. Add other PA taxable dividend income. See the instructions. Describe or list payer and the amount.

Total	6.	—
7. Enter your total dividends (cash and property actually received) from the earnings and profile of non-PA S corporations. See the PA-40 instructions.	7.	—
8. Enter your total PA taxable dividend income from partnerships and PA S corporations, if not already included in Line 1.	8.	—
9. Total PA taxable dividend income. Add Lines 5, 6, 7 ,and 8. Include on your PA-40, Line 3.	9.	1180 70

Dear Robert:

Thank you for your generous donation to the building fund of the Carbondale Public Library. We will follow your instruction as to the inscription to be placed on the donor plaque.

As a board member you are aware that our library has just completed its second year in the new quarters and that both our registration and our circulation, the lifeblood of a library, have shown healthy increases. We can all look forward to being able to better serve area communities with the additional space and materials.

Your partnership with us in building this new resource means so much to us! It is this support that will see us through the 'mortgage years'. Thank you for your commitment to the project.

Sincerely,

Marty

Robert Powell

From: Robert Powell

Subject: The Editor's Lot
Date: Friday, April 09, 1999 4:14PM

There appears to be nowhere to hide from the misuse of language.

When I was returning from lunch today, I was stopped at a light. A gigantic DoJge Ram thundered up, in the next lane. And there we both sat, waiting for the green light. I looked out my left window and found myself looking directly at the top of the front right tire of the behemoth that was champing at the bit beside me. (My Chevy S-10, I noted, was about one-third the size of its much larger cousin in the next lane.) Intimidating? Well, yes, just a little. But a Chevy S-10 is a force to be reckoned with.

The light changed, and the Dodge Ram lunged forward and roared out of sight. Printed in large letters on the Dodge's rear panels was the following sign/announcement/declaration: "Shear Intimidation."

Yes, I thought, let's "cut intimidation."

Very amusing.

If I ever see monster-Dodge/Polyphemus again, I think I'll try to speak to its driver and explain--gently, and from a good distance--that there is a significant difference in meaning bertween the adjective "sheer" (which surely must have been intended for the truck's proclamation) and the transitive verb "shear."

This is important tax information and is being furnished to the Internal Revenue Service. If you are required to file a return, a negligence penalty or other sanction may be imposed on you if this income is taxable and the IRS determines that it has not been reported.

Series Of Stock	1 Ordinary Dividends	3 Nontaxable Distribution	4 Federal Income Tax Withheld
COMMON	$1,194.80		$.00
Total	$1,194.80		$.00

Instructions For Recipient:

Box 1. - Ordinary dividends, which include any net short-term capital gains from a mutual fund, are fully taxable. Include this amount on the "Dividends" line of Form 1040 or 1040A. Also report it on Schedule B (Form 1040) or Schedule 1 (Form 1040A), as appropriate.

Box 3. - This part of the distribution is nontaxable because it is a return of your cost (or other basis). You must reduce your cost (or other basis) by this amount for figuring gain or loss when you sell your stock. But if you get back all your cost (or other basis), you must report future nontaxable distributions as capital gains, even though this form shows them as nontaxable. For more information, see Pub. 550, Investment Income and Expenses.

Box 4. - Shows backup withholding. For example, persons not furnishing their taxpayer identification number to the payer become subject to backup withholding at a 31% rate on certain payments. See Form W-9, Request for Taxpayer Identification Number and Certification, for information on backup withholding. Include this amount on your income tax return as tax withheld.

Nominees.- If your Federal identification number is shown on this form and the form includes amounts belonging to another person, you are considered a nominee recipient. You must file Form 1099-DIV for each of the other owners to show their share of the income, and you must furnish a Form 1099-DIV to each. A husband or wife is not required to file a nominee return to show amounts owned by the other. See the 1998 Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, and W-2G.

PA DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

PA TAXABLE INTEREST AND DIVIDEND INCOME

Name(s) as shown on your PA -40: Helen Powell

Social Security Number: 175-01-4536

Filing Tip. ♦ Caution. Federal and PA rules for taxable interest and dividend income are different. Read the instructions. Make all necessary adjustments for reporting PA taxable interest and dividend income. ✔ Filing Tip. If either your PA taxable interest or dividend income is $2,500 or less, you do not need to enclose a schedule. If your interest income or dividend income is more than $2,500, you must enclose a schedule. You may fill out a PA Schedule A or B. You can enclose a federal Schedule B, if you are reporting the same taxable interest or dividend income for PA purposes. You may also use a PA Schedule I to report the federal amount. The Department of Revenue can verify the amounts you reported on your federal tax return.

PA Schedule A - PA Taxable Interest Income

If your PA taxable interest income is over $2,500, you must submit a schedule. See the instructions in your 1998 PA booklet for what interest is taxable or exempt. If you need more space, attach additional schedules in this format.

If filing federal Schedule B:

1. Enter the amount from Line 4 from your federal Schedule B	1.	9069 52
2. Subtract PA exempt interest that you reported as taxable on federal Schedule B. See the PA-40 instructions.	2.
3. Subtract your share of non-PA subchapter S corporation interest that you reported on federal Schedule B. See the PA-40 instructions and PA Schedule B, Line 7.	3.
4. Subtract other PA exempt interest. See the instructions. Describe or list payer and the amount.
	4.
5. Adjusted PA taxable interest. Subtract Lines 2, 3, and 4 from Line 1.	5.

If you do not have to report any other PA taxable interest, enter the amount from Line 5 on your PA-40, Line 2.

If a shareholder in a non-PA S corporation, see Line 7.

6. Add other PA taxable interest. See the instructions. List each payer and the amount.

Total	6.
7. Enter your total PA taxable interest from partnerships and PA S corporations, if not already included in Line 1.	7.
8. Total PA taxable interest income. Add Lines 5, 6, and 7. Include on your PA-40, Line 2.	8.	9069 52

9801210015

PA Schedule B - PA Taxable Dividend Income

If your PA taxable dividend income is over $2,500, you must submit a schedule. See the instructions in your PA-40 booklet for what dividend income is taxable or exempt. If you need more space, attach additional schedules in this format.

If filing federal Schedule B:

		Amount
1. Enter the amount from Line 6 of your federal Schedule B.	1.	1899 60
2. Subtract PA "exempt interest dividends" you reported on federal Schedule B. See your mutual fund or investment fund statement and the PA-40 instructions.	2.
3. Subtract your share of non-PA subchapter S corporation dividends that you reported on federal Schedule B. See the PA-40 instructions and Line 7.	3.
4. Subtract other PA exempt dividend income. See the instructions. Describe or list payer and the amount 4.
5. Adjusted PA taxable dividend income. Subtract Lines 2, 3, and 4 from Line 1.	5.

If you do not have to report any other PA taxable dividends, enter the amount from Line 5 on your PA-40, Line 3.

Historical Society, CAHS commemorate 148th anniversary of city charter signing

By Tom Flannery

The Carbondale Historical Society and Carbondale Area High School commemorated the signing of the city charter in 1851 during a ceremony at the school last month.

Mayor Michael Tolerico, who participated in the program, issued a proclamation commemorating the 148th anniversary of the charter which was read by CAHS junior Curtis Haley. Musical performances were featured as well, including a percussion piece written and performed by another student, Jeremy Pilny, which drew a rousing ovation.

Student participants read texts written by Historical Society president S. Robert Powell on the early years of Carbondale and the origin of the city's name, along with a special historical text focusing on Fell Twp.

Others who participated in the ceremony included Laurie Carlo, legislative assistant to State Rep. Edward Staback, CAHS seniors Carrie Tolerico and Michelle Tolerico, juniors Leo Makosky and Amy Carachilo, sophomore Jimmy Prieto, freshman Melinda Atkins, 8th grader Katherine Brager, and 7th grader Carmen Winters.

Preparing for 150th bash

Powell told the NEWS that this was the eighth Charter Day ceremony held in the city since 1983, the last five of which have been conducted at Carbondale Area.

"We reinstated the series of programs for the first time since 1990 because we're coming up on the 150th anniversary of the city charter in 2001," he explained, "and we wanted to start laying the foundation for that celebration and preparing both the students as well as the city itself for the events which will be planned."

In his address to the students, Powell told them that they represent the future of the city and said the citizens of Carbondale who care about the city are the lifeblood of the community. He encouraged them to become active citizens and to help forge the direction of the city through political activism, by voting and participating in public meetings.

"How can we help our city to realize its full potential as a community?" he asked. "We can help by getting involved in our community. Carbondale needs us. Carbondale's leaders need us."

He noted that the city charter was adopted during a public meeting on March 15, 1851 by citizens who were concerned about the future of their city and had petitioned the state legislature six months earlier for a charter. He said these citizens fulfilled a dream which began when resolute settlers first came into the Lackawanna Valley of Northeastern Pennsylvania in 1802 — just 26 years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence — and established their homes here.

Following the city founders

Powell urged the students to follow in the footsteps of the city's founding fathers by believing in themselves and in their community. He added that community service is "the greatest service, the greatest favor imaginable" that citizens can do for their own descendants and future generations of Carbondaleans.

"If we are courageous, we can make it work," he stated confidently. "If we are men and women of fortitude, we can succeed. If we are resolved in our dedication and our commitment, and if we are willing to serve our community, not for our own personal gain or glory, but for the sake of the community and its future, we can succeed as no others have succeeded in our entire 148-year corporate history."

He noted that the most constructive form of political activism for students who care about Carbondale is to make their opinions known to the city's leaders on important issues facing them.

"They need us to say yes and they need us to say no," Powell offered. "When something pleases us that they have done, we must learn to make known our pleasure, and when something that they have done displeases us, we must learn to make known our displeasure, and we must do so, not on the street corners or in the public houses of the community, but we must do so in structured, intelligent ways, where it counts — in the voting booths and in the public meetings that are called for the purpose of making governmental decisions."

By emulating the city's founding fathers in these ways, he told the students that they can each play a pivotal role in ensuring the success of a vibrant Carbondale for many years and future generations of citizens to come.

"Every one of you is as valuable as any asset that any community can have," he pointed out. "We are the city. You and I are the city....If we, like the founding fathers, simply believe in ourselves and in our community, we can and will have a bright future, and the City of Carbondale can and will have a bright future."

The daily NPR business report is wonderful. The day wouldn't be complete without it.

This morning Madeleine Brand used an incorrect past participle in her report on the cost of the recent strike/job action by the pilots at American Airlines. She reported that the strike "costed" the company $15 million dollars. The correct verbal form in this instance is "cost," not "costed."

"Costed" is acceptable when used with "out," meaning "to estimate or set the cost of," as in, for example: "The marketing department costed out the new product line."

Dear State Library:

The Carbondale Historical Society is pleased to entrust to the State Library of Pennsylvania nine rolls of microfilm originals of newspapers published in Carbondale in the nineteenth century.

These nine rolls cover the following years:

1. December 8, 1838—December 18, 1846
2. January 1, 1847—December 27, 1850
3. January 3, 1851—July 22, 1853
4. May 30, 1863—December 22, 1866
5. January 5, 1867—December 24, 1870
6. January 7, 1871—December 30, 1876
7. January 6, 1877—December 31, 1881
8. January 7, 1882—May 11, 1883
9. May 27, 1882—May 9, 1884

Over the years, we have presented to the State Library of Pennsylvania a large number of rolls of original microfilm of newspapers published in Carbondale during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. We have retained copies of all of these microfilms for use here in Carbondale at the Historical Society and in the Carbondale Public Library. In the event that some of the copies that we have here become damaged or have to be replaced, we would like to know what procedures we will have to follow to order copies of microfilm originals of Carbondale newspapers in the archives of the State Library of Pennsylvania? Is there a list that we would refer to in placing an order? What is the present cost of a copy of one roll?

Sincerely yours,

S. Robert Powell

Who's Who in the Cast & Crew

ROBERT J. MISKO (Producer/Director/Moonface Martin) is thrilled to bring Anything Goes back to the Bistro stage. It was first produced in 1992 and, being one of the theater's favorite shows, he and Roy decided to bring it back ("Just like old days--isn't it, Roy?") Rob would like to thank a wonderful cast for their time and talent. He is happy to be reprising his role of Moonface Martin. Some of his other favorite roles include Reverend Mother in Nunsense A-Men, Don Quiote in Man of LaMancha, and Pseudolus in A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, for which he won the 1998 NEPTA award for Best Actor. Rob would like to offer thanks to Roy and Sean for making the show that much better. Special thanks to Gwen, not just for her wonderful talents, but for her friendship. Finally thanks to his family and special thanks to Deb . . . (just two more productions 'till the big day).

GWEN DELANY (Reno Sweeny) has toured the world in such shows as Hair, 42nd Street, and Annie. She is thrilled to be back with her Corner Bistro family after last being seen as Mother Superior in Nunsense II. Some past favorite roles include Sophie Tucker in Sophie, Totie, & Belle; Dolly Levi in Hello Dolly; and Winnifred in Once Upon a Mattress. "Good luck with the ball and chain, Rob and Deb. 'And more to follow . . .'"

DEB LYDON (Hope Harcourt) is the music teacher at Holy Rosary School in Scranton. She also teaches voice lessons at her studio in Carbondale. Deb is thrilled to be playing a main role again on the CBDT stage. Some of her favorite roles include Maria in The Sound of Music, Marion in The Music Man (for which she won the 1998 Best Supporting Actress NEPTA award), and most of all, Anna in The King & I. "Best of luck to the cast, especially Wendy, and all my love to Rob."

PETER NISH (Billy Crocker) is happy to return to the Bistro after recently playing George Gibbs in Our Town at Marywood University. Favorite roles include Cooky in The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd; Sister Amnesia in Nunsense A-Men; and the Scarecrow in The Wizard of Oz. He would like to thank Rob, Deb, Roy, and his family (especially his brother Bill for teaching him Chinese).

PAUL WINARSKI (Lord Evelyn Oakleigh) recently directed the Showcase Theatre production of The Three Penny Opera. He has earned two Best Director nominations from NEPTA for On Golden Pond (Showcase) and Oklahoma! (Little Theatre of Wilkes-Barre). He and his wife Dawn are board members at Showcase Theatre. Some favorite roles include Geoffrey in The Lion in Winter, Banquo in Macbeth, John in The Cocktail Hour, and Malvolie in Twelfth Night.

TARA PLISKA (Erma) is thrilled to be back at the Bistro. She has appeared in Grease, The Sound of Music, Nunsense, Whorehouse, and various murder mysteries. She was the 1998 recipient of the NEPTA award for Best Supporting Actress for her portrayal of Roz in Moon Over Buffalo. When Tara is not sporting a crimson wig, she can be found as the brunette ballet director at Dave Ragnacci School of Dance.

CAROL DAVIS (Evangeline Harcourt) is very happy to be back at the Corner Bistro appearing with her friends, old and new. Past show include Annie, Annie Warbucks, Hello Dolly, Man of LaMancha, Bye Bye Birdie, Music Man, The King & I, Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?, and New Years Cheers.

MERLIN PHILLIPS (Elisha Whitney) has appeared with most theatre groups in the area. Professional engagements were at Scranton Public Theatre and Woodloch Pines. Favorite roles include Gin Game and Norm Thayer in On Golden Pond, for which he received a Best Actor NEPTA award in 1998.

FRANK KRANTZ (Captain) is a graduate of Millersville University and Marywood College. He taught in Lakeland School District for thirty years. During that time he performed in Annie, Hello Dolly, Once Upon A Mattress, and Bye Bye Birdie, to name a few. Before retiring he was inducted as an honorary member of the Lakeland Curtain Club Thespian Troupe #5516. Frank most recently appeared as Mr. Weber in the 1998 Bistro production of Gypsy.

JOHN BALDINO (Purser) is happy to be celebrating his seventh anniversary on the Bistro stage. His first role was in CBDT's production of Anything Goes in 1992. Some favorite roles since then include Hero in Forum, Andy in New Year's Cheers, and Drake in Annie & Annie Warbucks. When not on the stage, John works as Member Relations Coordinator at WVIA Public Television and Radio. John would like to dedicate tonight's performance to the memory of his Aunt Mafalda. "I'll miss seeing you in the audience, but you'll always be in my heart."

SEAN T. HARRIS (Choreographer) is a professional dancer and instructor of jazz and tap at the Joan Harris Centre in Kingston. He has choreographed numerous musicals including Jesus Christ Superstar, Godspell, and Whorehouse. He won the 1997 NEPTA Best Choreography award for the musical West Side Story. Sean is currently serving as the president of the Northeast Pennsylvania Theatrical Alliance.

Subject: Commas

Clarity of meaning is the important thing to consider when deciding whether or not to use a comma with a subordinate clause.

One also has to consider the position and role of the clause in the sentence.

If the clause is introductory, regardless of the role it plays in the sentence, it is followed by a comma.

If the clause is nonintroductory, one has to consider its role in the sentence and then decide if a comma is necessary to guarantee clarity of meaning. Whether or not one uses a comma with a nonessential/nonrestrictive clause depends on whether or not the meaning of the sentence is clear without the comma. A nonessential/nonrestrictive clause in the middle of a sentence seems to call out for commas; one that appears at the end of a sentence does not.

Having reexamined the three sentences you cite, I now think that a comma is not required in any of them. "Although," "even though," and "after" are all subordinate conjunctions that introduce adverbial clauses that appear at the end of sentences, and their meaning is clear without the commas.

I"Practical English and the Command of Words" offers the following advice: "Aside from following a few rules that everyone regards as standard, use of the comma should be governed by the feeling and intended meaning of the author. The writer must be certain, however, that the punctuation used is such that his or her ideas will be clearly conveyed."

As soon as I think I understand all this, it evaporates in front of my eyes, and I find myself standing in quick sand.

Dear Mr. Powell:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your generous donation of the microfilm copies of your papers on exhibition poultry. Your donation will provide an interesting, informational look at one of Pennsylvania's agricultural products.

The State Library is also very happy to accept your donation of $100. It will be used to purchase some volumes on the history of agriculture and its importance to the Pennsylvania economy. If you have any suggestions, I would suggest that you forward them to me. Once these volumes are received, they will be plated to designate your gift.

If you have any questions about this, please contact me at (717) 783-5968.

Dear Ms. Lubrecht:

Thank you for your letter of April 27, 1999 regarding my donation of microfilm about exhibition poultry to the State Library.

I can think of two books that might be nice additions to the holdings of the State Library (if they're not already in the State Library's collection) that could both be purchased with my recent $100 donation. Both of these volumes are excellent reference works about exhibition poultry and would, therefore, be very useful to researchers, students, and readers who are interested in this field in the history of agriculture in Pennsylvania.

Those two volumes are:

> THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION. Illustrated. A complete description of all recognized breeds and varieties of domestic poultry. Published by the American Poultry Association, Inc. The 1998 edition is available, for $48, from the Secretary/Treasurer of the American Poultry Association: Ms. Lorna Rhodes, 133 Millville Street, Mendon, MA 01756.

> THE BANTAM STANDARD. 10th edition, 288 pages, 8 pages in color. Contents include 63 breed descriptions, 90 plumage pattern descriptions, judging and scale of points, glossary. This volume is available for $30 from the Secretary of the American Bantam Association: Eleanor Vinhage, P. O. Box 127, Augusta, NJ 07822.

The work of the State Library of Pennsylvania to preserve the broad history of agriculture in the commonwealth is much appreciated. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Fiber optics has always been one of my special interests. Knowing your passion for the subject, as I do, I wonder if you can direct me to some Internet chat groups where I can fully indulge my lust for the latest news from the supercharged and ethereal world of fiber optics?

In return, I shall be pleased to report on the very latest developments in Product Development, including all of the details (overheard--and not by choice) about the gastro-intestinal difficulties, automotive crises, and psychological yearnings of our dear friends in desk top publishing! How I do miss being able to confer with you (and have a good laugh about) the inanities that are broadcast throughout the department from DTP on an hourly basis. You'll be interested to know that a certain desktop publisher, who already hovers precariously on the edge of the precipe of anorexia, has decided to go on a diet. She has also decided to "glamorize" herself. As a result of these two new impulses in her life, she looks like an emaciated hooker. She continues, of course, to be loud.

Editors' row continues to be wonderful. Nice and quiet. Sometimes I have to look next door to see if Paul or Scott are there. I've been working on a lot of catering and gourmet cooking study guides. The textbook for the guides, Labensky and Hause's ON COOKING, is superb. It's a teaching cookbook and probably the best book on the subject I've ever seen. The author of the study guides is a pretentious idiot, and surely the worst writer (and probably a rather silly cook) in existence.

We're down to one project manager, Jim Shemanski. What used to be done by the project managers has been dumped on the editors, of course. Jim is a grand person with a wonderful sense of humor. I've worked with him on a few projects, and he's great to work with. I'm not sure how long Marie is going to be out on maternity leave. My impression is that she's probably a wonderful mother.

I can't believe you're already out of school and back into the "rewarding" world of office work. Working 9 to 5 is a silly--and wasteful--thing to do with the best hours of every day! As usual, I'm exploring ways to break out of the world that seems to have trapped me for the moment.

Bev Petrini has just now passed by and sends her greetings to you.

Me and my feathered friends. I am now a licensed poultry judge and was recently named a Grand Master Exhibitor and Master Breeder of Partridge Plymouth Rocks by the American Poultry Association. Some dairy farmers who live not far from me recently gave me an adult mute swan male. Such a beautiful creature. I'm presently trying to buy a female swan so I can raise some swans.

I've just now discovered that the light in the Dean's office is not on. Can it mean that he is out of the office today? Well, well, well. It looks like it's going to be a good day.

Robert

Dear Robert,

If you promise not to broadcast it throughout the department, I'll let you in on a little secret I've been keeping. After whetting my appetite at ICS, I decided to indulge my passion for fiber optics by going on a bus tour across America ... talking to community and church groups about how they, too, can become experts on the subject simply by enrolling in the course. I looked up Sally in the phone book and gave the old gal a call. Just because she put on a few pounds doesn't mean she should have to hide HER passion for fiber optics. We've been going strong for months now! We get along so well ... diligently working together for ICS ... it feels as if it's "all in the family."

Now that you know what I've been doing all this time, let me just say that it was really terrific to hear from you -- as always. Talking like this takes me back to the good old days. Remember the time we were sitting in the Dean's office (or maybe it was Glamour Girl Debbie) listening to that woman (what WAS her name?! Kate something) rave about SGML? You asked one simple question, and she stared at you for the rest of the session! Her eyes were glued to your face.

Sadly, my workplace lacks the interesting and idiosyncratic characters I came to know and love at ICS. I don't know if the Dean mentioned it, but I've been searching for a new job. I'm sure the University of Chicago Press will look good on my resume, but I've been unhappy since I started. I think it has a lot to do with the fact that I don't really feel like an editor. We have some extremely pretentious authors who, for the most part, seem to be in love with their own words. We're discouraged from making content changes unless the text doesn't make any sense; mostly I spend my time making sure the footnotes and tables conform to the U of C style. At least at ICS we were able to make the writing sound better without changing the facts. Anyway, enough complaining.

Things are looking up, though. I interviewed last Monday for a copy editing position at Bridge News, a financial news organization at the Chicago Board of Trade office downtown. There was a message on my machine when I came home from work today ... I'm one of two final candidates for the job!! The next step is an at-home editing test. Then we'll meet the head boss from NYC, who makes the final decision. The job seems really interesting, the money is a lot better, and the people (from what I can tell) are very friendly.

Cheryl told me quite a few new people have started since I left. Are you keeping the Editors' Row-houses in good shape? I hope the new occupant of my old pad is enjoying the lovely view of the overhead fluorescent lights and makeshift gray walls. Come to think of it, the one thing that DID make it feel like a real neighborhood was the daily floral arrangement that sat on top of your cabinet.

Congratulations on your many "feathery" accomplishments. So does this mean you'll be a judge at the state fair you and Martha Stewart attended? You should invite her again this year. Oh go on, don't be ... chicken. Heh heh.

Say hello to everyone for me. Hopefully the Dean's light is out again, and you can all relax. (Just kidding, of course. The Dean was -- and I'm sure still is -- an A-1 boss.)

-Kelly

Dear Mr. Powell:

I am grateful for your part in making the Heritage Express '99 such a success. The children and teachers who participated in this program not only learned about the Lackawanna Valley - they had a good time!

None of the LHVA projects could be accomplished without the commitment of people like you. Thanks again.

Sincerely,

Announcing
the Margaret Mead 2001 Awards recognizing community creativity for a new century

Take note from the Margaret Mead Centennial Committee, Institute of Intercultural Studies, and Whole Earth

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it's the only thing that ever has."

When Margaret Mead died in 1978, she was the most famous anthropologist in the world. In her honor, starting in 1999 and continuing through 2001, the centennial year of Margaret Mead's birth, Whole Earth and Margaret Mead's foundation, the Institute of Intercultural Studies, will join together to honor small groups of thoughtful, committed citizens who have changed the world.

Mead always believed in the human capacity to change, insisting that the cultural habits of racism, warfare, and environmental exploitation are learned. She promoted human diversity as a teaching tool; pointed to modified traditions and new institutions that had successfully adapted to a changing world; and praised groups who were inspirations, models and vehicles for learning from one another. Her goal was nothing less than intercultural and international understanding as a foundation for human freedoms.

If you know of a small group (fewer than 100 people) anywhere on the planet that has worked to change the world; that has cross-connected issues such as race, environment, intergenerational learning, child rearing, and gender understanding; that has developed an organization or series of tools that others can learn from; and that takes a long view of cultural understanding, please send your nominations to:

Mead 2001 Awards

In 1925, Margaret Mead lived in American Samoa studying adolescent girls. Coming of Age in Samoa became a world best seller presenting, for the first time, the idea that stormy adolescence might not need to be so stormy, depending on culture. In 1929, among the Manus of New Guinea, she pushed her paradigm. In Growing Up in New Guinea, she told "civilized" humans that they had a lot learn from the "primitives" about passages from childhood to adulthood to old age. She then extended her fieldwork to gender roles and, with Gregory Bateson, used photographs to document the subtleties of child-rearing and adult culture. In 1953, after World War II, she returned to Manus and documented in New Lives for Old the historic cultural change caused by the globalization of formerly local, isolated peoples. Her academic home was the American Museum of Natural History. Her awards, including the Presidential Medal of Freedom, are obviously numerous.

Finest Red Rhubarb!

New Valentine!

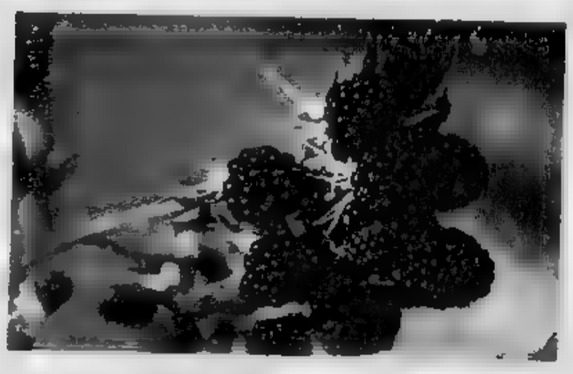

(GV 301S) Beautiful dark red stalks make zesty, satisfying sauces or pies. Much less acid than green stalked and other red varieties, so it is sweeter to the taste and needs much less sugar. Grows faster, too. Pull stalks a year sooner than with other kinds. We think you'll agree this is tops in yields and satisfying flavor. Perennial. Set plants 3 ft. apart.

ILLINI BLACKBERRY

(BF 211 S) So hardy and fruitful, this Illinois-developed berry sets new standards of quality in blackberries. After winters to 23° below zero, it yields heavy crops of berries with a taste and zest a lot like wild blackberries. Priced with Thornfree.

Stephanie Culp

Organizing Your Way to Success

PEOPLE WHO ARE successful usually have many traits in common, including top-notch skills, a willingness to work hard and an ability to stay organized.

"Being organized is crucial to productivity and follow-through—essential elements of success in every line of work," says Stephanie Culp, author of 611 Ways to Do More in a Day.

Culp offers the following suggestions on how to get and stay organized.

STEPS TO THE TOP

■ Clear your desk two or three times a day so the clutter doesn't get a foothold. "The few minutes spent putting things in order will help to clear your mind," says Culp. "At the end of the day, stop 10 minutes early to organize everything on your desk and plan and prioritize your work for the following day."

■ Block out time to batch tasks. For example, schedule a half-hour first thing in the morning to check and answer E-mail. Return calls for one hour after lunch. Spend an uninterrupted hour each day on paperwork.

■ Don't ignore small tasks that take only a few minutes to do, such as filing and putting things away. "Establish daily habits and routines so small things don't turn into a mountain of tedious chores," says Culp.

■ Don't spread papers all over your desk; work on one piece of paper at a time and keep the rest neatly organized in a stack on a corner of your desk or in a vertical file.

■ Consider doing the worst thing on your to-do list first. "Tackling a tough assignment or difficult phone call first thing in the morning, and getting it out of the way, makes everything else you do that day a breeze," says Culp.

THE BOTTOM LINE:

▶ Planning your work schedule, sticking to priorities, keeping your desk clear and catching up on backlogs can help you be more successful.

■ Stick to your priorities. Don't let others sidetrack you with their demands.

■ Don't allow daily or mundane interruptions to become urgent matters. You can ignore a constantly ringing telephone. Let voice mail take some messages while you take care of more important priorities.

■ Plan and organize your work schedule. Set deadlines and stick to them, especially if you're handling a big project.

■ Take some time to catch up on backlogs by coming in early or staying late for a week and spending the extra time getting things under control. "You'll be able to handle daily obligations with less stress if you're not constantly worrying about things that have backed up on you," says Culp.

■ Review your priorities every day. Begin the day by tackling a high priority item. Leave the low priority ones for last. Then, if you don't get everything done by the end of the day, you're leaving the less-important tasks uncompleted.

■ Don't automatically assign a high priority to tasks that others have asked you to do. Let their requests take their proper places on your to-do list; it's up to you to assign the priority level.

■ Stop waiting for a huge chunk of time to become available before you start something that needs to be done. "Major blocks of time are few and far between for most people," says Culp. "Chip away at things you have to do."

■ Quit while you're ahead. Try to pick a good place to stop, rather than stopping in the middle of something. It will be easier to start up again later.

■ Organize your to-do list. Review and re-prioritize it daily. Cross off completed tasks and add any new items. Don't waste time rewriting your list every day; rewrite it once or twice a week.

■ Make sure you plan tomorrow today. "Lurching from day to day never produces much over the long haul," says Culp. "If you don't plan your future, you set yourself up to fail." VOD

A Message from Harcourt General

With the completion of our conversion to Fidelity, we are pleased to introduce your first statement. Please note that this first statement covers a four month period from December 1, 1998 through March 31, 1999. Going forward, you can expect to receive your statement reflecting activity for each calendar quarter.

Loan balances: As described in our January communication Planning Ahead, the Plan adopted the "declining balance method" for loan repayment. Fidelity converted your loan balance to "declining balance" as of December 1998. "Declining balance" means repayment applied to principal and interest will change through the life of the loan, much like a home mortgage. (Previously, a fixed amount was repaid to principal and interest each pay period.) To keep your repayments and payoff period unchanged, Fidelity was required to change the stated interest rate on your loan balance. Please note: This change does not affect your payroll deduction or original loan payoff date.

For questions about your statement, call 1-800-835-5095. You can also access your account on the internet at www.401k.com.

40TH ANNUAL SPRING CONCERT

THE CRYSTAL BAND

THE CRYSTAL BAND

The Crystal Band, currently under the direction of Thomas Frew, has been delighting audiences for more than one hundred years with its fine musical presentations. Performing at various times throughout the year, this modernized town band has been instrumental in promoting the universal language of music.

Organized as a boy's brass band in the Petersburg section of Scranton, The Crystal Band has always provided the opportunity for amateur and professional musicians to develop their musical abilities under capable leadership at little cost to themselves. The band, whose initial membership was seventeen, flourished until the beginning of World War I when many of the young musicians went off to serve their country. Two decades later, during the height of World War II, some of the charter members decided to revive the band. The first rehearsal in 1943 comprised thirty-two boys and girls, two of who are active in the band today. This kind of dedication to the band is the norm rather than the exception to the rule.

During the past few years the membership of the band has increased substantially due to an outreach program designed for young musicians in our area. Formed around a nucleus of older musicians, musically inclined youth have an organization where they can display their talent in a strong community-minded concert band.

The present band has fifty members from teenagers to senior citizens, all whom share a love for music. The band rehearses every Monday from 7:30 P.M. to 9:00 P.M. at Trinity Baptist Church, 1546 Monsey Avenue, Scranton, from September through June.

Since its beginning, many dedicated musicians have contributed their time and talent, and have enabled the band to promote programs and activities unparalleled by any other organization in Northeastern Pennsylvania. The success of The Crystal Band has also been due to the leadership abilities of the various individuals who have served as band directors. They have discharged their duties with integrity and commitment.

The officers and members of The Crystal Band wish to extend a very warm welcome to everyone present at our concert this evening. It is our sincere hope that you will find the concert both inspiring and enjoyable.

The Crystal Band wishes to extend their genuine appreciation to the following who have made this concert possible: Scranton School District, Dr. John R. Williams, Mr. William King, and the maintenance and staff here at South for their gracious cooperation. Also, a very special thanks to the members of the band for the giving of their time and talent, and to everyone who furnished transportation to rehearsals and concerts, regardless of the weather conditions. Without the support of our families and friends this concert could not have become a reality.

Now friends, sit back and enjoy the magic of The Crystal Band!

Larry Hughes

Tonight's performance is more than just our annual spring concert; it is a tribute to one of our own – Larry Hughes. Though he wore many different hats, we can proudly boast that Larry was one of us. Larry joined the Crystal Band as a playing member in 1965. In 1971 Larry became associate conductor under Earl Brink. In 1986 he picked up the reigns and took on the position of conductor and musical director. He continued in this position until 1997 when he stepped down to pursue other interests. Larry played on occasion after that when his schedule allowed.

Larry had many other accomplishments as a musician. He earned a bachelor degree in music education from Wilkes College. He played professionally as a trumpeter with the Exact Change Band. He was the principal trumpet with St. Peter's Cathedral Brass Quartet. He owned his own business with his wife Debbie, L.F. Hughes Music Co., gave private lessons, and played trumpet solos throughout the area.

We'd like to welcome the members of Larry's family present with us tonight. We'd also like to thank Colin and Doreen as well as the other members of the antiphonal choir who came out tonight to make this performance extra special.

Larry's passing came much too soon for us all. We are grateful for having had him in our lives. We will always treasure his wisdom, his sense of humor, and all that he gave to make the Crystal Band what it is today. Larry brought out the best in us and made many of us better players than we thought possible.

CARBONDALE PUBLIC LIBRARY
Meeting of the Board of Directors
April 20, 1999

The regularly scheduled monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Carbondale Public Library tock place on April 20, 1999, in the community room of the library. The meeting was called to order at 7:30 P.M. by Martin Langan, president. Present were Mesdames Muldoon, Calabro, Miley, Race, and McNabb; Messieurs Staple, Vandenberg, Wallis, Pascoe, Langan, and Powell.

As the meeting began, Marty called for a moment of respectful silence as an expression of our sympathy to the families of those killed, wounded, or hurt in the tragic shootings that took place earlier today in Columbine High School in Colorado.

The Recording Secretary then read the minutes of the March meeting of the Board. It was regularly moved (Pascoe) and seconded (Miley) that the minutes be approved as read and placed on file. The motion carried. Pauricia Calabro then read the treasurer's report for March. It was moved (Race) and seconded (Staple) that the treasurer's report be accepted as read and placed on file. The motion carried.

Correspondence and Communications. The Library Director reported that a thank you note had been received from the Walter Washeleski family. S. Robert Powell mentioned that Walter and Lillian Washeleski were both former teachers of his. He noted that Lillian Washeleski was one of the most important formative influences on him during his time as a student at Fell High School. S. Robert Powell: "Mrs. Washeleski was a real champion of those of us who were very interested in things academic. She supported us and gave us confidence in ourselves. I shall always be grateful to her for enthusiastic support during those years."

Report of the Library Director. Anne reported that Sally Felix had approved the financial arrangements that the Carbondale Public Library has made to pay the salaries of Ms. Peduto and Ms. Grecco. Anne also reported that the Library should have its bulk mailing permit in a few days.

A proposal from Eastern Time, in Allentown, has been received by the Library to monitor the Library's emergency-alarm equipment for $25 a month ($288/year). It was moved (Calabro) and seconded (Race) that the Library contract with Eastern Time to monitor the Library's emergency-notification system. The motion carried.

Anne also reported that she and Sally Felix had recently attended a library-related legislative day in Harrisburg.

Old Business. Marty Langan complimented the Friends of the Library for the very impressive flagpole dedication ceremonies that were recently held at the Library.

Joseph Pascoe reported that he has been in contact with Steve Oliveri about securing two flowering pear trees for the now-empty plots in front of the Library, between the sidewalk and the street.

Marty reported that everything was all set for the installation of the art works in the Library's collection or those works on loan to the Library from the Carbondale Historical Society. Kathryn Race reported that she had found, at the Windsor Art Studio, appropriate clips to hang the artworks. Marty said that there should be a lot of art installed by the next meeting of the Board.

Marty reported that everything was all set for the lecture/presentation of Dr. Munley on the Carbondale Mine Fire. The event will take place on the main floor of the Library. It will be co-sponsored by Carbondale's News Club, who will make cookies for the event. Kathryn Race said that she would make the fruit juice punch. Marty said that he would make the coffee and contact the Carbondale News.

New Business. Father Steve Matylewicz reported that the Trinity Episcopal Church would sponsor a baked ham dinner on May 22nd to benefit the Carbondale Public Library. Packets of ten tickets (@$7 per ticket, $4 for children) were distributed to the members of the Board for sale.

S. Robert Powell, as president of the Carbondale Historical Society and Museum, presented copies of nine rolls of microfilm of Carbondale newspapers from the nineteenth century to the Library. The dates of these newspapers are as follows:

December 8, 1838—December 18, 1846
January 1, 1847—December 27, 1850
January 3, 1851—July 22, 1853
May 30, 1863—December 22, 1866
January 5, 1867—December 24, 1870
January 7, 1871—December 30, 1876
January 6, 1877—December 31, 1881
January 7, 1882—May 11, 1883
May 27, 1882—May 9, 1884

Over the years, the Carbondale Historical Society has had produced microfilm copies of all of the newspapers in the collection of the Carbondale Public Library. These newspaper holdings are, without doubt, the single most important source of information about the history of Carbondale and the surrounding area, from the second decade of the nineteenth century to the late twentieth century. (The hard copies of all of these newspapers are now in the holdings of the Historical Society.)

The newspaper microfilm rolls that are in the Carbondale Public Library are copies made from the microfilm originals. All of the original 35 millimeter microfilms (my guess is that there must be over one hundred rolls) of the entire newspaper collection of the Carbondale Public Library and the Carbondale Historical Society have been entrusted to the State Library of Pennsylvania in Harrisburg and are in the State Library's underground archival vaults in Butler County. Control of the microfilm originals is under the direction of the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. Duplicate copies of the working rolls in the Carbondale Public Library can be obtained at any time, at a cost of about $25 per roll, by contacting the State Library of Pennsylvania in Harrisburg.

Bill Wallis reported that the Friends of the Carbondale Public Library will sponsor a bus trip to Hyde Park, NY on September 25, 1999, with a departure from Carbondale at 8:30 A.M.. During the trip, visits are scheduled for the Roosevelt and Vanderbilt residences. Bill noted that the oldest hotel in America is located in Rhinebeck. Katherine Race noted that the Culinary Institute of America is housed in an old abbey on Route 9, not far from Hyde Park.

Katherine Race reported that she will participate in a reading program in the Forest City Regional Schools. The program is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Darlene Bednarczyk is the chairperson of the program.

Katherine also said that she had "a hair-brained fund raising scheme" that she would like to place before the Board. That scheme is a follows: the Library would purchase, for $18,000, from Kelly's in Scranton, one of the new Volkswagen "beetles" and conduct a raffle. The old-style "Volkswagen beetles," she noted, are available from Mussari's in Carbondale for $13,000. Marty thanked Katherine for her proposal and noted that the matter would require additional thought before any action could be taken by the Board.

Katherine also noted that there will be a Day of Joy and Gladness in the United Methodist Church this coming Saturday from 10 A.M. to 2:30 P.M. The cost per person is $5.00.

With no further business to conduct, it was regularly moved (Vandenberg) and seconded (Staple) that the meeting be adjourned. The motion carried.

Respectfully submitted,

S. Robert Powell
Recording Secretary

Historical note: Aubrey Staple reported that the bowling league that he belongs to used to bowl at Bilotta's, until it burned down. Then they bowled at the Catholic Youth Center. Now they bowl at Valley Lanes in Childs.

Dear SRP:

We missed you today at the wedding. Hope everything's OK.

The wedding was magnificent, but it would have been better with you there.

Dear WBW and Andrea:

How I wanted to be there! And I would have, if life hadn't gotten too complicated here recently.

My mother managed to get herself out of bed in the middle of the night and fell and broke her sacrum, banged up her ribs, hurt her back. It's been wearing: emergency rooms, orthopedists, MD's. What to do, what to do. My brother and I decided to continue to keep her at home and take care of her. We've arrived at a new level of difficulty in home care for the elderly. I'm weary. But we're surviving. And things seem to be getting better.

It was a perfect summer day here on Saturday and I thought about the two of you much of the day. I'm sorry I couldn't be on Barge 79.

Congratulations and best wishes to you both. It's a wonderful, life-asserting, full-speed-ahead step that you have taken and it restores my confidence in life, human relations, and humanity.

Sincerely,

SRP

Subject: Birth of a verb

It was a quiet delivery and accompanied only by the benign smirk of the editorial midperson who assisted in the birth, so you may not be aware of the fact that a new verb was born in "the cubicle next door" at about 9:10 A.M.

The new verb is "to person," and it appears in the following sentence in "Plate and Buffet Presentation" in the catering course (aka, "program"):

"To person the stations on a buffet table, it's important to remember that . . ."

The verb was brought into existence to avoid the use of the "odious" transitive verb "to man," which has been in the language for over seven hundred years, but which is now regarded as completely unacceptable by certain "enlightened" segments of the population.

I, of course, enjoy poking fun at the idiotic nonsexist language that we are forced to use by "the great minds now in charge" and take great delight in creating grating and stilted sentences in which nonsexist language figures prominently. One of my fond hopes is that English will again come to its senses during my lifetime and cast aside all this now-popular and obligatory nonsexist crap that is presently enjoying its moment in the sun.

Also, in the course of the past hour, thanks to the spell checker on my computer, I have learned that "Ping-Pong" is a trademark and must be capitalized and hyphenated as shown here. The "author" of this study guide suggests that Ping-Pong tables can sometimes be used in buffet setups.

So, there you have it. As Monsieur Jourdan says in Moliere's "Le Bourgeois gentilhomme": "Qu'il est bon de savoir quelque chose!"

Your new kid has colic--just like pop!

After all, you could show a little mercy on the politically correct with something like:
"When stationing your serving staff along the buffet table, remember that..."

Still, I have to admit that "to person the stations..." is probably the funniest act of deliberate sabotage I've ever enjoyed witnessing.

Ping-Pong is a trademark--I never knew that.

be a panorama of local groups agencies and health care professional working together to offer an interactive day for seniors. Included in the events will be a combination fitness and historic walking tour, four lecture presentations, physicians and health care screenings, table exhibits for the information of interest to seniors, free gifts, door prizes and raffles, light refreshment, and van transportation.

National Senior Health and Fitness Day co-ordinated by the Mature Resource Center has taken place nationally for six years. This is the first event for the Carbondale area. Ann Barbara, co-ordinator of the Carbondale Senior Center, commented, "We tried to incorporate the interests and needs of seniors of all ages. We are excited with the response we have had and the interest of the community concerning this senior event. We are inviting all of the seniors of our area to come to the Carbondale Senior Center on May 26 for a day of enjoyment and socializing. They should come see what their Senior Center has to offer."

There will be four presentations: 10 a.m.-"Walking for Health the Right Way," demonstrated by Frank Manganeila; 10:30 a.m.-"Sightseeing Walking Tour of Down Town Carbondale," conducted by the Carbondale Historical Society; Noon-"Food: The Best Nutritional Supplement," a lecture given by Melissa Tassia, registered dietician from Marian Community Hospital; 1 p.m.-"Making Your Nest Egg Last," financial discussion presented by Penn State Cooperative Extension; 2:30 p.m.-"Gardening: Exercise that Beautifies, given by a member of the Physical Therapy Department of Marian Community Hospital. The hospital will provide Blood Pressure Screening, Pulmonary Function and Oxygen Saturation Testing, and Body Fat Analysis throughout the day. In addition,

Historical Society sets downtown walking tour

The Carbondale Historical Society will offer a walking tour of downtown Carbondale as part of National Senior Health Day, May 26. The tour will depart from the Carbondale Senior Center, 66 North Church Street. Individuals interested in participating should arrive at the Center at 10 a.m. Frank Manganella, Personal Trainer, will instruct on proper walking technique for safety and maximum benefit. After his presentation, walkers will be led to noteworthy spots throughout the downtown. Carbondale Historical Society officers S. Robert Powell and Joseph Pascoe will serve as narrators of the tour.

The touring group will stop at several historical markers including those at Gravity Park, Gravity Shop, Main Street, Public Library, City Hall, Train Station, Memorial Park, Church Street, and Oddfellows Hall. In addition, the group will visit Council Chambers and the Carbondale Historical Society's office at City Hall where portraits of former mayors have recently been added to permanent display. City Hall management will provide light refreshments. Throughout the tour, the narrators will provide commentary of the architecture and history of Carbondale. The specific course will be determined by the weather and the group.

Planners feel the walking tour is an opportunity to combine two important activities in the lives of seniors. One is the need to keep moving, and the other is the pleasure that comes from enjoying the history and beauty which surround them. "Walking is one of those common, everyday activities which we may be doing improperly. Manganella's presentation will provide tips on how to improve one's walking style" said Sister Maryalice, Marian Community Hospital's Community Programs Director. "We are very excited to be offering a walking tour of the downtown area as part of the day's program. Walking is such an important exercise. Also, we don't often think about sight-seeing in our downtown but there is much to see and appreciate."

For more information on the Carbondale Walking tour or other activities of the Carbondale Senior Health Day, call the Senior Center at 282-6167.
